"ALFALFA LOVE"

Two-reel Century Comedy

Featuring* BROWNIE

BROWNIE was an all-around good "chore dog," playing the piano while the wives of the Bulls sat drinking their afternoon tea; milked these same cows at the proper time; looked after the baby chicks, and did everything that a regular farmer is supposed to do.

On this same farm live three wise boobs—men who follow master in, everything the cleverest one of the three does. One fine day, a leter comes to the farm tilling that the new owner is a woman who is anxious to get married. Now what this note really meant was she was getting ready to get married, and the three wise boobs brush up in their endeavors to wi nthis fair owner of the farm.

She arrives, and each one of them try in vain to win her. Then one day she introduces them to her husband—and gives them the notice that they are fired. So they go down the railroad trick to end it all—for their Alfalfa [illegible] But even [illegible] against them, [illegible]

[illegible] he is, advises them that [illegible] not dead, and sees that they bend their footsteps toward the old home.
