Carmel Myers in "A Daughter of the Law"

SYNOPSIS

Police Inspector Hayes' only son Eddie has gone wrong and is a member of a gang of crooks. Nora, the Inspector's daughter, maintains her faith in Eddie and has tried unsuccessfully to reform him. During her visits in the underworld she has come to know George Stacey, leader of the gang. George has become infatuated with Nora, believing she is the ex-sweetheart of Eddie.

Jim Garth, high in the favor of Inspector Hayes, is in love with Nora. Garth is ordered to gather men together and round up the gang. Garth reminds the Inspector it will perhaps mean a term in the pen for Eddie if he is caught. The Inspector realizes he is passing sentence on his own son but fights bac khis grief. Nora hears of the intended round-up and sets out to warn the brother.

Nora finds Eddie and persuades him to go with her. However, Nora is trapped and held a prisoner, unknown to the boy. Eddie is forced to go along with the gang on a "job." Nora escapes and returns hurriedly to her father. Meanwhile Garth and his men have followed and corner the gang. Nora and the Inspector arrive during the fight. George, Believing he has been double-crossed, kills Eddie and tries to "get" Nora.

George and his friend Silm are convicted on Nora's testimony. The culprits make an escape. They manage to capture Nora, take her to a dive in the slums, but leave a trail behind, hoping to draw Garth into the trap and work their vengeance upon him. Garth tips off the Inspector and continues the hunt. He finds Nora, but is himself apprehended. The crooks intend scarring Nora's face with vitriol; they also decide to use it on Garth. But Nora pleads, and finally bargains with George. She agrees to make the Inspector let the crooks escape into Canada. The crooks are to let her go free, but take Garth along as hostage as far as the border.

Nora plans to manage her sweetheart's escape, knowing the crooks will not let oarth go at the border.

With the Inspector and his men Nora catches the same train as the crooks take. Disguised, she takes a seat behind that of George and Garth, watching an opportunity to change vitriol bottles. This comes when, at a signal from her, the train crew pulls a fake wreck. The lights go out. When they are turned on, the Inspector and his men have entered and have the crooks covered.
