Abduction Plot Failure Laid to Mistaken Identity

"Range Rivals"

Two-reel Western

CUPID McALLISTER loves Betty Patterson. Sam Briggs is Cupid's rival. Cupid orders a suit. Jake Hutton, the town "bad man" also receives a suit like Cupid's.

Cupid calls on Betty in his new clothes and finds Sam there. He rides off gloomily by himself.

Jake starts in shooting up the saloon when some refer to his clothes in a slightingly manner.

Jake makes a getaway, the crowd after him. He almost runs into Cupid. Jake ducks, while the crowd mistakes Cupid for him. The mistake is discovered and the crowd resumes its pursuit of Jake.

Sam sees Jake run into a deserted shack. From the distance it looks exactly like Cupid. Sam reaches the shack just as the pursuing crowd arrives. Sam learns that it was Jake he had been trying to help and not Cupid. Betty reaches the bunkhouse and is surprised and relieved to learn that it was not Cupid the crowd was chasing.

Betty's birthday party gives Sam a chance to get even with Cupid. He has ordered a dress suit for the occasion. It arrives. He spies Cupid's coat. He goes to the dance in it. Cupid sews the ripped coat and goes to the party.

He sees someone snooping around the corral. He tackles him and finds it is Jake. Jake is overpowered. Cupid has again ripped the dress coat. He sees Jake is wearing the suit that matches his and takes Jake's coat, leaving in its place Sam's ripped one.

Jake recovers and is peeved to find his good coat gone and a ripped dress coat left in its place. He sees Cam standing with his back to him enjoying a smoke. Jake wallops him behind the ear. Jake takes the coat from Sam, and leaves the ripped dress coat.

Sam thinks Cupid has assaulted him. Cupid returns in Jake's coat and is surprised to find Sam in the rippped dress coat.

Cupid sees Jack forcing Betty along with hi mand a chase is started. The chase ends in Jake's capture, and everything looks rosy for Cupid.
