AUG 30 '21

©CIL 16908 c

MY LADY OF THE PINES;

By Helman Day.

This drama tells the story of the keen rivalry of twolumber companies. One is owned by the heroine, Norah Codlison; and the other is the Tulandic Lumber Co., managed by Vincent Strott, who is devoit of conscience concerning the rights of others. Norah's manager is Jasper Wiggins, who approaches Strott with a plan to cheat the girl out of her lumber lands. Meanwhile, Penn Thornton arrives at the Tulandic Co., sent by Blake, the president, to make an impartial survey of the pine property. Strott and Wiggins immediately look on him with suspicion, believing that he will block their game, and Strott eventually causes his discharge.

Thornton has overheard the plot to rob Norah of her holdings and goes to her to inform her of Strott's plans. She hires him as superintendent of her lumber interests and both of them await the next move of Strott. While examining the girl's lands, Thornton sees Strott and his lumber jacks cutting down the girl's timber. Calling his own gang, and armed with sticks of dynamtie they drive the poachers from Norah's property, but in the action Thornton is hurt. Norah nurses him back to life, and their engagement brings the story to a happy finish.

This document is from the Library of Congress
"Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection, 1912-1977"

Collections Summary:

The Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection, Class L and Class M, consists of forms, abstracts, plot summaries, dialogue and continuity scripts, press kits, publicity and other material, submitted for the purpose of enabling descriptive cataloging for motion picture photoplays registered with the United States Copyright Office under Class L and Class M from 1912-1977.

Class L Finding Aid:
https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi020004

Class M Finding Aid:
https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi021002

National Audio-Visual Conservation Center
The Library of Congress