Synopsis–Episode Two

"THE CYCLE BULLET"

Hutch dives off the cliff and drags Nancy from the whirlpool to the bank, where Big Bill Hogan, a friend of Tigerly's, knocks Hutch out and carries Nancy off. Hutch, in pursuit, gains time by crossing a chasm over the river, walking on a trolley rope used to convey buckets. With more daring risks, he rescues Nancy and takes her home.

The successful operation of the paper mills worries Marlow. Nancy has refused to marry him; he has failed to obtain the scarf and a big contract for paper is offered Nancy that, unless she can be prevented from signing it, will mean that Marlow cannot foreclose his mortagage.

Nancy goes to New York to sign the contract. Marlow and Ann Haviland accompany her—Ann hoping to secure the scarf; Marlow to prevent the signing of the contract. Bella learns of Marlow's scheme and tells Hutch. He grabs a motorcycle and starts after the train. After crossing a trestle, leaping a broken bridge over the train, and dashing in front of it at several crossings, he secures a handhold, but not a foothold on the rear car. The speeding train drags his feet along the ground.
