Bro[illegible]le's Little Venus

Two-reel Century Comedy

Featuring* Brownie and Baby Peggy

Directed by FRED FISHBACK

THE CAST

Brownie	By Himself
The Husband	Bud Jamison
His Wife	Lillian Biron
Their Baby	Baby Peggy

WE meet Brownie, and his little playmate, as Brownie is pulling might and main to tighten little Peggy's corset. With no little difficulty Brownie, eventually, has his playmate looking like a little Venus.

Father, home for a change, decides to take friend wife, their baby, and Brownie, to the theatre—but the Blue Law has closed the theatre, and back home again they go. They take for their beds—before they pull in the [illegible] sidewalks.

Some time later a "gentleman waffles—just out of his irons"—breaks into the house, and makes for the safe. Peggy feeling a little bit hungry about this time knows where the jam is kept, and off she goes to get it. The burglar hears her coming, and scortes himself. Upstairs father and mother are awakened by the rattle of the safe, and down they come. After much confusion, in which Peggy is taken for the burglar, father really catches the thief—with the aid of Brownie and his little Venus.
