OCT 12 1921 "BROTHER OF THE BEAR"

The picture tells the story of Vincent Harris, the young foreman with an ungovernable temper, who, being discharged by his employer, enters the woods to fight out the battle with himself. A tame bear is his only companion and he pours out his troubles into the bear's ear. In the meantime, Harthorne his employer has placed Sudbury in charge, hoping at the same time that a romance will spring up between the new foreman and his daughter. Marcia, however, still loves Harris, and prays for his return. Shortly after, a party is formed to visit the woods, and the camp of Harris invaded. The tame bear trots forth to greet the invaders, who flee in all directions, Sudbury taking to a tree followed by the bear. In the action which follows, Harris forces a confession from Sudbury, that he has been defrauding his employer, causing Harthorne to take Harris back and sanction his engagement to his daughter.
