©JCL 17318 DEC -6 1921

The chapter opens, showing Hutch escaping from the villains and hastening to the rescue of his sweetheart, Nancy Kellog. He also hopes to encounter Ann Haviland, who has escaped with the silver scarf which contains the secret code. Hutch succeeds in overtaking Nancy by riding on horseback and catching up with her train, but Ann he is unable to find. When they reach the paper mills, Nancy receives a message from Ann asking her to come to her lumber camp at once, but to say nothing about her visit to Hutch.

Nancy arrives there and Ann promises to return the silver scarf if Nancy will give up Hutch. Nancy refuses and Ann begs her to spend the night there and think it over. Meanwhile, Marlow arrives and attempts to take the scarf from Ann. He is foiled by Hutch, who being suspicious of Nancy's actions, has followed her there. Ann has her lumbermen seize Hutch, saying that he is her fiance. Hutch is locked in a small shed until morning. Before dawn, however, Nancy steals from the cabin and helps Hutch make his escape, saying that she will join him later. To elude his pursuers, Hutch climbs to the top of a steep inclined railway and is plunged to the river below by the act of Marlow.
