©CIL 17344 c HURRICANE HUTCH #15. DEC 10 1921

By Charles Hutchsion.

Hutch learning Brinkely is headed for the cave where the formula is hidden, hastens after him, unaware that Tigerly was following his footsteps. Brinkley discovers the box with theformula. Hutch surprises him, demands the paper and when Brinkley refused to give it up, takes it from him, only to be attacked by Tigerly. A struggle ensues and between Brinkley and Tigerly, Hutch is pushed off the cliff into the waters below. Fortunately, he is not injured by his fall, recovers himself quickly and hastens to Nancy Kellog's home. Here with the aid of the code book which Nancy has been able to secure, the symbols are deciphered and the formula finally secured. But the troubles of Hutch and Nancy were not yet over — for, when the big dredges were at work gathering up the seaweed from which pure white paper is to be made, the crafty Morrow and his henchman (Tigerly) endeavor to put the machinery of the dredge out of commission, but their efforts come to naught and in a struggle between themselves, the evil conspirators both go to their watery graves and Anne Hastings despairing at last in her efforts to win Hutch's love, confesses her share in the plans whbh nearly ruined Nancy and prevented her marriage to Hutch. With their marriage, came success and the fulfillment of the contracts and the glorious prospects of a happy life in the future.
