MAR-4 '22 "THE CANADIAN LYNX" By Robert North Bradbury.

The offering opens with Bill and Bob visiting the Zoo, where they learn that the pride of the menagerie, the Canadian lynx, has passed into the animals' Happy Hunting Ground. The boys offer their services to capture another specimen, which are accepted. Immediately they set out into the wilds with "Rags", the dog, and their trapping paraphernalia. At midnight the lynx walks into the trap and Bill and Bob bring their captive triumphantly to the Zoo. The comedy element of the offering is furnished by a young lady whom the boys see over the fence. Her pretty face causes rivalry between the two, and they both romantically decide to claim her after the capture of their animal. When the time comes, the object of their affections shows herself on the beach, and she proves to be one of the fattest little girls they ever saw.
