©CIL 17792 KILL THE NERVE

NA2722

By Hal E. Roach.

Two dentists in a large office building enjoy some business -- that is, one of them does. The one that doesn't happens to be where Snub's girl is employed. She loses her job, butwhile taking her depature she is attracted by a large crowd which forms a line leading to the rival dentist. Curiosity takes her hand, and luckily for her, she secures a job. Snub is immediately sent for, and he too becomes assistant molar puller. The reason for the crowd is thatthis dentist offers a reward of $500.00 for any tooth that he can't pull and so far he hasn't paid out any money. But unfortunately for him, a patient seeking revenge for loeing two perfect good molars, enters the dentist's rival's office where he has inserted a new tooth which is set in with a powerful cement and forthwith starts for Snub's new employer. Weights, pulleys, trolley cars and powerful faucets fail to move the stubborn tooth and Snub is at his wits end to save the $500.00. How he does it is one of the funny spots in the comedy.

This document is from the Library of Congress
"Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection, 1912-1977"

Collections Summary:

The Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection, Class L and Class M, consists of forms, abstracts, plot summaries, dialogue and continuity scripts, press kits, publicity and other material, submitted for the purpose of enabling descriptive cataloging for motion picture photoplays registered with the United States Copyright Office under Class L and Class M from 1912-1977.

Class L Finding Aid:
https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi020004

Class M Finding Aid:
https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi021002

National Audio-Visual Conservation Center
The Library of Congress