DAYS OF OLD.

by Hal E. Roach

It was a rainy day and "Snub" lying indolently before a warming big fire-place listens to his grandmother reading a fairy tale. It was about that wonderful Carpet of Bagdad. Drowsiness overcomes "Snub" and his imagination still filled with the wonderful tale, carries him out on the mystic wheel into the rounds of "The Arabian Nights". Of course there is a pretty Princess and many suitors and in his efforts to win her hand, Snub is to overcome many rivals. In the most vivid portions of his dreams come the humorous and particularly funny situations and needless to say when they are all finished, Snub has won the girl and is about to seat himself on the throne of this magical kingdom when a touch on the shoulder brings him back to the land of reality.
