SHORT KILTS

By Hal E. Roach.

Laurel is the son of a canny Scotchman and he is in love with the daughter of a neighboring family whose parents object to the match. Laurel's family is invited to dinner and during the festivities which follow, much horse-play is indulged in and during this the couple take themselves away to the nearest minister and get married. Unknown to them, Laurel's sister is in love with Laurel's wife's brother and they too, get wed and to celebrate the double wedding a big feast is prepared and pleasant relationships are once more established amongst the families.
