"SAILING ALONG"
a two reel CENTURY Comedy
Starring Buddy Messinger

Father was the champion checker player and defeated his daughter's suitors as easily as pie. The latest, a lieutenant in the Navy left the house just in time to bump into Buddy who had a big boquet. The "Looey" snipped the blossoms off, and Buddy had only stems to offer.

Mabel gave him a chocolate, and he put it into his breast pocket. When he took his handkerchief out to wipe his face, he smeared himself with chocolate. Which greatly amused Mabel's father when Buddy asked if he could take Mabel to a picnic.

Instead, Father flung buddy out of the window. Buddie got an extension truck and rescued his fair one. Father followed, but flopped from the plank as the truck moved away. He followed. The lovers were separated. Buddy escaped into a Naval recruiting line, and discovered that he was acceptable.

On ship, the "Looey" was his superior officer and made life miserable for him. Buddy once spotted his sweetie on the boat, and after many hilarious events, discovered that his uncle was the ship's captain.

From then on he was sailing along in pretty style.
