SCREEN MAGAZINE, NO. 67.

Summer Vol. 1 APR 5 1918

ISSUE No. 67 of the Universal Screen Magazine opens with Beauty Hints from South America, for dressing the hair. Then there is a vaudeville act performed by several clever Japanese acrobats. Screen Magazine never fails to present an interesting chapter of army life, and this week it deals with Cavalry of the Air.

Starting with this issue, the Magazine will contain animated interviews each week with famous people you ought to know. The first interview is with Ida Tarbell, renowned writer, editor and biographer of John D. Rockefeller. The Magazine ends with a Miracle in Mud by Willie Hopkins, entitled "Seven Moons."
