(Main Title)

(Sub Title)

1 That the lad who has become confused as to the difference between right and wrong may be taught the right way; that the poor lad who hasn't the opportunity may be given an education, the State of Michigan founded a self-supporting Industrial School.

2 Every effort is used to fit each boy in his proper place -- as in the case of the printer.

3 With surprising skill these boys surpass their more fortunate rivals.

4 All the work-shoes for the school are of their own making.

5 So are their uniforms.

6 "Next!"

7 Then comes the detail work -- with certain squads doing specified work.

8 Barbering on a much larger scale.

9 In removing the weeds that contaminate and destroy thegood in plants, the boys are drawing for themselves an example of worth.

10 When tenderness and beauty work hand in hand.

11 Picking berries for dinner.

12 With an appetite that a growing boy must have, yet never forgetting for a minute the value of perfect order.

13 No dull boys here.

14 Even the music is furnished by their own band.

15 Must be playing a Russian Rhapsody.

16 Then comes the time when thoughts of "dear old mother" weigh heavily on the heart.

17 Into the land of dreams.

18 And on the Sabbath Day.
