BREAKS AGAINST CHICAGO

Luck Favored Reds Yesterday, Though Sox Failed to Make Hits Count.

fence. The sheets which were set up by the Woodland Bards, who constitute the Chicago rooting organization, died abruptly.

Attendance Shrinks.

The pastime was witnessed by 23,690 persons, a slight falling off from yesterday. The weather was that of mid-summer, but awoke the oppressive heat of yesterday there was a tempering breeze today. The brass band signalized the beginning of practice by the Sox by playing, "She May Have Seen Better Days," a mournful bit of sentiment popular 20 years ago, but the spectators recognized it and set up a roar of mixed derision and delight.

Both teams left for Chicago tonight to play three games at Comiskey park Friday, Saturday and Sunday, weather permitting.

Both sides played machine-like ball the first three innings. With the exception of a pass the Reds were retired in one, two, three order, while only two Sox were able to get on the base lines. Jackson doubled in the second and was sacrificed to third, but Gandil and Risberg were unable to advance him to the counting station. Williams singled in the third with one out, but J. Collins, who was said to be suffering from a bad cold, lined out to left and Eddie Collins grounded out to Daubert, unassisted.

Chicago started the fourth with an assault that greatly encouraged the crowd from the Windy City. Weaver and Jackson singled, but Weaver was held at second by the fast work of Duncan in retrieving the ball from left field. Felsch sacrificed and both runners moved up. With men on second and third and only one out, the Chicagoans pulled hard for a run. Gandil grounded to Daubert, whose throw to the plate cut off Weaver. Jackson made third on the play and Gandil was safe at first. He stole second and all eyes turned on the Sox shortstop, Risberg. Risberg waited for three balls and two strikes and then popped feebly to Daubert. "Slim" Sallee, the Red pitcher, was thus saved from the tightest hole of the game for him.

Williams Goes Up.

In the Reds' half Williams began his ascension. Rath walked and advanced on Daubert's sacrifice. Groh also received a passage, and then Roush singled to center, scoring Rath and placing Groh on third. Roush attempted to steal, but was pegged out by Schalk, Groh making no attempt to leave third. Duncan also waited for four bad ones and he and Groh rode home on Kopf's triple to the left field fence. The agony was ended for Chicago when Neale was thrown out, Eddie Collins to Gandil.

In the fifth an error by Risberg and a single by Rariden placed Reds on the bases, but Daubert, Groh and Sallee flew out and nothing came of it. Roush in the sixth received his second pass and he completed the circuit on Duncan's sacrifice and Neale's single. This ended the Red scoring.

Sox Score in Seventh.

With one out in the seventh, Chicago made a new bid for the game and with the assistance of certain fielding eccentricities of their opponents got two runners across the plate. Gandil, the first man up, was out at first, but Risberg singled to left and Schalk to the other corner of the field. Neale attempted to head Schalk off at second, but his throw went into the crowd near third base, and Risberg and Schalk scored before the ball was retrieved. Williams struck out and John Collins flied out to Roush.

In the ninth the Sox batsmen made a desperate and final effort to pull the contest out of the fire. Gandil singled to center, but Risberg's savage blow went to Rath and Gandil and Risberg were doubled in a lightning-like play. Schalk singled to center and McMullin was called up as a pinch hitter. On a similar occasion yesterday he singled, but today he was an easy victim, Rath to Daubert.

Manager "Pat" Moran indicated tonight that he would start "Hod" Eller, one of the mainstays of the Reds' pitching staff, in the third contest of the series at Chicago tomorrow. Eller, a former member of the Sox, has been with the Reds three years, and the present season was the most brilliant of his career.

Supporters of the White Sox believe that Manager Gleason will send Dick Kerr, a left hander, into the fray in an effort to stop the Reds tomorrow. Kerr is regarded as one of the best pitchers on the Sox staff.

Manager Moran was jubilant tonight over the Reds' second victory. "We have beaten Cicotte and Williams and have nothing to fear of the other pitchers of Gleason's staff," the leader of the Reds said. "I will admit that the victory was lucky one, that we got the better of the breaks, but winning ball games is the thing that gives players confidence, and, with two games to their credit, my players are confirming over with it. Nothing will stop them from winning the world's title."

The triumph of the Reds was termed a "lucky" one by Manager Gleason of the Sox. "We suffer being nearly 1 to 1, but the breaks of the game went against us," Gleason said. "The Sox are far from out of the race. We have the greatest 'comeback' ball club in the world and these two beatings will make my players fight all the harder to win it up.

"I expect to start Kerr tomorrow, but might use Cicotte, as I have every confidence in Eller to trim Cincinnati."

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—With 18,000 reserved and box seats sold, the sale of 16,000 pavilion and bleacher seats for the local opening tomorrow of world series play will start at 4:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

With the Reds victorious in the first two games of the series, the demand for tickets in the third contest to be played in Cincinnati next Monday was greater than ever.

"Wait until we get 'em on our home grounds," was the cry from the White Sox camp.

"The Reds are the most formidable team I've ever seen," said Federal Judge Landis of Chicago after the game.

Joe Jackson, the White Sox slugger, got his first hit of the series in the second inning when his short high fly to center fell safe, the drive going for two bases.

Eddie Roush, the Reds' star outfielder, thrilled the crowd again today with marvelous catches.

The Reds went hitless until the fourth when Roush started the fireworks with a single. His drive scored Rath with Cincinnati's first run.

"Slim" Sallee got revenge today for the two beatings the White Sox gave him in the world series with New York two years ago.

Jake Daubert, the veteran first baseman, played a sensational fielding game. He accepted 13 chances with only one error.

The crowd was mystified when when Sallee made his balk. To all appearances he made no effort toward getting the man at second, but had simply started to wind up for delivery to the plate and then stopped. Sallee himself does not know what made him stop, and he laughed over the matter after the game.

While no exact tally was kept as to the number of balls hit into the crowd during practice and during the game, the head groundskeeper estimated that the crowd had got away during the day with from 35 to 40 of the spheres. Not one of them was thrown back onto the field.

Pacing the Sport World

By Larry Darley

ALL OKLAHOMA collegiate football elevens get under way this week, every school playing tomorrow. As with the two games last week a majority of this week's contests are regarded as little more than practice games, though one secondary game is likely to develop into a hard battle.

Following are the collegiate games scheduled for this Saturday:

East Central normal vs. Kendall college, at Tulsa.

Kingfisher college vs. Oklahoma university, at Norman.

Southwestern normal vs. Oklahoma Aggies, at Stillwater.

Southeastern normal vs. Central normal, at Edmond.

Northwestern normal vs. Phillips university, at Enid.

These are the 10 leading elevens of the state and all five games will enable football followers to get a line on the class of the respective teams. Kendall and Oklahoma showed they will be in the race for the state title by their victories over O. B. U. and Central last Saturday. In East Central normal, Kendall meets one of the leading secondary elevens and a hard fight may be expected, though the Presbyterians are figured stronger. Not much opposition is expected to be furnished Oklahoma by Kingfisher.

Central normal, which, with East Central ranks first among the second schools of the state for the development of high-class football elevens in the past half decade, and which plays well against the larger schools of the state, meets every normal in Oklahoma in its race for the secondary championship. As a starter, Central takes on Southwestern normal of Durant at Edmond tomorrow. Central is figured to win.

Phillips, tied for the state title two years ago and one of the leading elevens last year, is starting its third season under the tutelage of Johnny Maulbetsch, former Michigan all-American halfback. Phillips plays Northwestern normal tomorrow. Like Southwestern, the Rangers were formerly one of the leading secondary schools, but discontinuance of football for two years has necessitated a new start on the part of the Alva teachers.
