

AWP00174_PH01

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg being interviewed in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH02

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg being interviewed in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH03

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg being interviewed in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH04

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg being interviewed in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH05

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg being interviewed in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH06

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg being interviewed in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH07

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH08

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg shows candle holders and components he's making in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH09

Candle holders and components made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH10

Candle holders and components made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH11

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH12

Ornamental cattails embedded in rocks, crafted by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, amidst Dr. Pepper cases in the entryway to his home in North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH13

Ornamental wine bottle holders crafted by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, in the entryway to his home in North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH14

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg shows the base of one of his candle holders, with others on a table in the background, inside his home in North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH15

Ornamental cattail bedstead made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, along with his late wife's framed embroidery, inside Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH16

Ornamental cattail bedstead made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, along with his late wife's framed embroidery, inside Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH17

Candle holders made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, on display inside Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH18

Candle holders made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, on display inside Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH19

Ornamental floral bedstead made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, inside Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH20

Detail of ornamental floral bedstead made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, inside Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH21

Detail of ornamental floral bedstead made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, inside Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH22

Detail of ornamental floral bedstead made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, inside Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH23

Ornamental floral wall candle holder made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, alongside a childhood photograph of his late wife, Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH24

Ornamental candle holder, floral decorations, and tray made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, placed on the porch of the Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH25

Detail of ornamental candle holder, floral decorations, and tray made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg, placed on the porch of the Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Note that Tanneberg's "mark," evergreen trees on a hill, is cut into the tray; a rough translation of his name from German, Tanne (evergreen or Christmas tree) and Berg (hill), along with the initials C and H (for Christmas Hill). Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH26

Ornamental candle holder, floral decorations, and tray made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg (seen in background), placed on the porch of the Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH27

Ornamental candle holder, floral decorations, and tray made by retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg (seen in background), placed on the porch of the Tanneberg home, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH28

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg shows a number of blacksmith hammers he has made in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH29

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg shows a number of blacksmith hammers he has made in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.

AWP00174_PH30

Retired ironworker Bill Tanneberg shows a number of blacksmith hammers he has made in his welding and blacksmithing shop, North Freedom, Wisconsin, July 11, 2011. Photo by Jim Leary.