INTRODUCTION

This guide is a comprehensive list of sources covering the legislative process available in the Library of Congress. In addition, selected sources that contribute to understanding the legislative process have been included for other branches of the Federal Government.

The emphasis is on sources that appear primarily in print. Microfilm and microfiche sets are included where applicable. And in cases where the publication is available online, these databases have been included. The locations given are effective as of January 1, 1992.

The following selected titles are standards in the fields of government documents and legal research. Some include out-dated material but are the most recent editions available.

Since 1970, the best source for tracking down the multitude of legislative publications. Abstracts and indexes: 1) hearings (including witnesses), 2) committee prints, 3) House and Senate Reports, 4) House and Senate Documents, 5) Senate Executive Reports, 6) Senate Treaty Documents, 7) Public laws (legislative histories), and 8) selected special publications. For additional information see: "User Guide" (preface each edition).

For coverage prior to 1970 CIS has several retrospective sets arranged by type of publication. These include committee prints, hearings, and the Serial Set. Entries for these sets can be found by consulting the title index.

a. CIS/Index.

"Index" and "Abstracts" sections provide current information that cumulates into the CIS/Annual. Issued monthly; "Index" cumulates quarterly.

b. CIS Cumulative Index.

At present a sixteen volume set, 1970-1990. Revises and supersedes the CIS/Annual Index but not the Abstracts.

c. CIS/Annual.

Divided into two basic sections; abstracts and index (subject, title, bill#, report#, document#). Since 1984 divided into three volumes; abstracts, index and legislative histories.

d. CIS/Microfiche Library.

   Although available in print, the Bill Digest is most readily accessible online through the SCORPIO CG files. Options for the CG files vary by Congress (see: SCORPIO Reference Manual) beginning with the 93rd Congress (1973-).

   Location: SCORPIO CG file

3. Congressional Record. Index.
   Both indexes, the bound annual and the biweekly, contain a separate section titled "History of Bills and Resolutions".

   NEXIS/legis;record (1985-)
   DIALOG/135 (1981-) [abstract]
   SCORPIO/cr## - r### (1977-) [abstract]

4. Congressional Record. Daily Digest.
   Beginning with the 80th Congress, this supplement to the Congressional Record provides information on bills introduced, reported, and passed the preceding day and a summary of chamber and committee action. The Daily Digest cumulates at the end of the session to become a separate volume of the bound Congressional Record. The bound edition also includes "History of Bills Enacted into Public Law."
   Location: see p. 15.
5. Calendar of the House of Representatives and History of Legislation.
   For the description and location see p. 14.

6. Congressional Index. CCH.

1. Congressional Record.
   Both indexes, the bound annual and the biweekly, cite where votes are recorded in the Congressional Record.
   Location: see p. 16
   online version: SCORPIO/cr

2. CO Weekly Report.
   For description see p. 7.

3. CQ Almanac.
   For description see p. 8.
1. Calendar of the United States House of Representatives and History of Legislation. GPO. J47.A3
   Official source of business reported from committees. Published daily when House is in session. Reports on pending legislation in both Senate and House. Monday issues include subject index to all legislation. Final issue provides summary of action, list of public law numbers, and list of bills that did not become law.

   Location: Deck 7/N 1901- (loan set)
   LLRR 74th/2nd- (final edition & current)
   DEPOSITORY 99th-

2. Senate Calendar of Business. GPO.
   Because the House calendar provides information on legislation for both the Senate and the House, this is not a frequently used publication. It is further hindered by having no index and is not cumulative. Published daily when Senate is in session.

   Location: Deck 7/N 1945-
   DEPOSITORY 99th-

3. Committee calendars. House & Senate. GPO.
   In general these calendars are a record of all committee business. Information recorded usually includes: members of the committee and subcommittees, legislation referred, legislative action taken, hearings held (and printed), and publications issued. Because each calendar is controlled by its respective committee, they vary as to content arrangement and frequency of publication. Issues cumulate with the final issue covering an entire Congress.

   Location: Adams Building Deck 7: (incomplete)
   JK1430 (House committee calendars)
   JK1240 (Senate committee calendars)
   LLRR 90th- (incomplete)
Debates

Congressional Record. GPO.

The Record is the fourth in a series of publications reporting congressional debates. They are as follows:

a. Annals of Congress 1789-1824
b. Register of Debates 1824-1837
c. Congressional Globe 1833-1873
d. Congressional Record 1873-

Since its inauguration the Record has gone through several revisions of content and arrangement. It now consists of four sections: the proceedings of the House; the proceedings of the Senate; the Extension of Remarks; and the Daily Digest, each paged and numbered separately. Since March, 1978 inserted items (those not "spoken" on the floor) are designated by a "bullet".

Current coverage of Congress is provided by the daily Congressional Record. The daily Record is superseded by the bound Congressional Record. However, because the bound set is an edited version of the daily, one index does not serve both. The index for the bound set is a separate volume while the Congressional Record Index is published biweekly as an index to the daily Congressional Record.

Departments

The departments of the executive branch issue many publications. Some of these are required by, and submitted to, Congress (e.g., annual reports). Once submitted they become congressional documents. As such they follow the same process of other congressional reports and documents that eventually become part of the Serial Set. For further description of the Serial Set and its location see p.

5. Proclamations & Executive Orders

   It is not always easy to distinguish between the use of these two. Customarily, proclamations are used for action that has no legal effect; yet some have the force of law, some do not. Executive orders are used to direct and govern government officials and agencies. Proclamations and Executive orders, however, are treated as distinct items with each issued in separate numerical order.
