A TRUTHFUL LIAR.

By Hal E. Roach.

Will Rogers, our former Congressman, has been promoted to the Court of OOR-NUNIPIA. He has all the requirements that this dignitary should have except the dress suit and most of his troubles are encountered when his valet attempts to shoehorn him into a dress suit. Being a bit of a humorist Rogers soon makes himself at home and very confidentially on the side, tells the King a few of the latest jokes, and later shows him how to play poker and how to shoot crap all of which pastimes Rogers is very good at. Needless to say on his return to his native town, he had many many stories to tell his fellow townsmen.
