EXHIBITION

We are led to believe that the school Exhibition given by the Unalakleet School Friday evening and at night also was equal to any ever rendered in Alaska. It would be quite difficult for pupils in any school to do credit to themselves and their teachers in a more meritorious manner. The male quartet of small boys singing all parts perfectly was the first ever given here. It is needless to say it was appreciated. The original dialogue, "Humbug" took the house.

Poor Supt. Green struck a live wire when he tried to hypnotize the school. Alex. couldn't keep from eating nuts in school. Miss Bird, the teacher, had her hands full with Tig, Charlie, Gale, and the girls.

The music by the string band was a genuine treat to all. The primary room added much to the merit of the entertainment. And the Kindergarten pupils seemed only too anxious to do their part, and always in a creditable manner.

SHOW

The dialog "Grandma Sh a w" brought forth many a hearty laugh.

Poor Jobie seemed to be bothered with some skin trouble. Betty and her song, "Kelly from the Emerald Isle" brought forth grandma's snuff box which early broke the necks of Phyllis and poor Betty in the sneezing act.

Miss Benson gave two excellent readings of just the kind to captivate the audience in such a way that not only was she scored but later asked to give them again.

Mrs. van Ness gave two difficult, and highly amusing readings. One in negro dialect being a true account of the experience of an old negro mammy and witches.

The dialog, Dr. Amputation, was rendered so vividly that the amputating of Tig's leg startled the old folks and scared the children.

The preparation for the entertainment required both time and patience

But after it was all over we felt repaid. It was two hours of genuine fun.
