 COMMERCIAL or AMATEUR RADIO OPERATORS
 ON ADAK

Attention:

"Seattle, Wash. The Headquarters U.S. Army Alaska Communication System announced today that the ACS Station at Adak, Alaska is no longer responsible for administering commercial and amateur radio operator examination for the Federal Communications Commission. For the past several years the ACS has administered these examination as a convenience to personnel stationed at Adak, however this function has now been assumed by the US Navy, Adak Communication Station. Individuals who desire to apply for either a commercial or amateur radio operators license should contact the Naval Communications Station for more information."

 DRIVE CAREFULLY

Driving on Adak or in New York, there's not too much difference in the chance that the pedestrian takes on the modern highway, or road-way.

Ask Robert Nelson, formally of Adak. After spending a year on the Island, then going to his home in Brooklyn, N.Y. in route to his next duty station, was hit by a car while crossing 5th Ave. at East 115 St. Manhattan. He was admitted to Metropolitan Hospital, Manhattan NYC, for treatment.

Nelson was transferred to the USS Bon Homme Richard (CVA-31) at Alameda, Cal.

Traffic safety is every-one's job, now that the weather is getting better here on the Island, more week-end hikers will be out, observe the rules and be around for that rotation date.

Drive carefully and watch out for the pedestrian as the old slogan goes, "DRIVE CAREFULLY THE LIFE YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR RELIEF."

Small * Noises

"This here's the healthiest place in the world," the old Maine guide was telling a tourist at the hotel. "No one ever dies here."

"Strange," said the tourist. "I just saw a funeral going down the road."

"Oh that. 'Twas just the local undertaker. Darn fool starved to death."
