Fire in New York

By Cable to The Daily Gateway.
New York, Oct. 5—A fire broke out this morning in the Mulberry district and raged furiously among the tenements. Many people jumped from the upper stories, and children were thrown from the windows.

Houstop Bleachers

Houstop bleachers at ten cents per bleach are still legal in Washington.

A few days ago James McAlister, who owns a home adjoining the American League Park, and who has been doing a profitable business renting roof seats to all comers was arrested on the charge of "maintaining an entertainment enterprise without license."

The legal sharps of the District government tried their best to prove McAlister guilty, but the police court judges finally decided that he had committed no offense in the eyes of the law. It is assumed that the court did not consider the variety of ball put up by the Nationals to be in the category of "entertainment."

Something of a Rainfall

Four and one half inches of rainfall in one hour, and 1.15 inches in only ten minutes, is going some, but that is what they had down in Panama one day last month.

They called it a shower, but admitted that it was the heaviest that has been recorded on the isthmus since the American occupation. It began about noon and lasted until 9:45 p. m. but the heaviest precipitation was between 2:30 and 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon. During those three hours there were 7.62 inches of rain.

Fortunately the precipitation was greatest at points where little or no excavation is in progress. Except for momentary trouble with sunken tracks and the natural difficulty of handling mud, the work on the canal proceeded as usual the day after the storm.

Return With Moose

Charles Christensen, Fred Laubner and Mickie Natt who went to the hills to hunt big game last Tuesday, returned Saturday evening and brought in on their horses the hide and quarters of a big moose.
