COMIN' & GOIN'

Now that the fisherman's strike is over everyone seems to be going places. Herb Domenico of Parks Canning Company left for Uyak.

Dr. J. P. Loftus, Territorial Veterinarian, left for his headquarters in Juneau.

Recent visitors in Kodiak were: Oscar Bergseth and Mr. Synnesvedt, officials of the New England Fish Company.

J. N. Steffgen, contractor who built the Kodiak Bank, left for Cordova on a business trip. He will return shortly.

Another passenger for Cordova was Miss Merion Harvey who will visit there for a couple of weeks. This is Merion's first trip away from home, alone.

Mr. McQuesten, manager for Sears Roebuck Stores in Alaska, left for Juneau.

Carl Pajomch, owner of the Kodiak Cash Market, was a passenger on the Cordova for Anchorage where he will enter the hospital to have a tonsilectomy.

Also listed as passengers on the Cordova for Seward were Mrs. Iyra Robertson, son Robert and daughter, Viola. Viola has been very ill and will enter the Seward hospital for treatment.

A man after our own heart--Mr. Van Hovenberg, representative for the Alaska Salmon Industry, left for Seattle. Mr. Van Hovenberg said he was almost sorry that the strike had to end as he enjoyed Kodiak so much. Maybe he could vacation here sometime.

Clyde Ellis, Anchorage lawyer, returned to Anchorage via the SS Cordova. Mr. Ellis was lawyer for the cannery representative in the recent fisherman's strike.

Roy Snyder, owner of the Mecca Bar, left for Cordova on a short business trip.

Mr. H. Krorolsholmer, owner of the Kodiak Fisheries left for Port Bailey on his annual tour of inspection.

The North Coast is due sometime Friday. Dr. Johnson's mother is a passenger and also Mrs. Fielding Dunlap wife of Fielding Dunlap who is employed as carpenter at the Naval Air Base. Mrs. Dunlap is a teacher in the Kodiak Territorial school having charge of Domestic Science.
