FEDERAL QUERY IN BIRMINGHAM BOMBING

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—A special Federal grand jury has been convened to investigate racial disturbances in Birmingham. The fatal bombing Sunday, Sept. 15 which killed four Negro girls and injured 23 others was one of several.

Pres. Kennedy said he was ouraging over the incident and he hoped it would bring America as a whole to recognize the nation to the folly of racial injustice, hatred and violence.

FBI agents and bomb experts have conducted intensive searches for clues at the church which was demolished by the dynamite blast.

Birmingham's Mayor Albert N. Boutwell and Gov. George Wall-ce are called for the arrest of the persons responsible for the bombing.

NAACP TO WORK AGAINST RIGHTS BILDERBECK

NEW YORK—Congressional foes of the pending civil rights legislation have been notified by the NAACP that they will campaign actively for the defeat of "any Congressman or Senator of either party who fails to vote for key provisions of a strong civil rights bill."

A resolution passed at the quarterly meeting of the NAACP Board of Directors here on Sept. 9 warned: "In this 150th anniversary year of the Emancipation Proclamation the legislative plight-of-hand of this country simply will not meet the serious mood of the Negro today."

The resolution marks a departure from previous NAACP policy which had been to submit the voting records of Congressmen to the public as a membership service to the general public. It gutted a real bill made by NAACP Executive Secretary Roy Wilkins in his keynote address at this state's 54th annual convention in Chicago last July.

STAY IN SCHOOL HINTS

Each year, thousands of school children make the trek to school in September. Many of these children enter school with high hopes that they will succeed in their tasks. Some parents, who have a dislike for a school because of their experiences, influence their children adversely toward the school. However, each group has a certain number of pupils who will drop-out of school in spite of everything that may be done.

It is a well known fact that the drop-out problem is one of the major considerations of the nation. The National Education Association and the Arizona Education Association, among others, both public and private are concerned with the problem. These organizations, together with private citizens, are trying to find a solution to the drop-out problem. The drop-out problem is a menace to the well being of the nation, because the drop-outs eventually become the unemployed boys and girls of our country. Dr. James Conant has spoken of these unemployed boys and girls as social dynamite. President Kennedy recently spoke of the seriousness of the drop-out problem on the health and security of the nation.

The problem must be attacked and solved at the grassroots level, that is, by the local communities. What can be done? In the first place, parents can become aware of the problem of drop-outs to the extent that they know the telltale signs. Children should be encouraged, praised, or otherwise motivated by the home. A quiet comfortable place should be provided for the children to study. The teachers must be trained in the art of love and understanding. Since all children will not be at the top of the class academically, it is imperative that the teachers realize that each pupil must develop according to his own ability. It is an indisputable fact that children can learn more in school than they can in the home. What is good is, therefore the responsibility of everyone to help keep children in school. The com-nunity can provide the facilities, equipment and materials to meet the needs of every child, not just the academically able but all those who are only trainable.

This article has been written from the viewpoint of the elementary school child, but the principles and facts apply to the secondary and college student. It must be remembered that the initial step of the drop-out is often made at the elementary school level. We work together to conserve our natural resources, be it in the classroom or in the park, together to conserve our student resources.
