

IF GERMANY WINS—WE PAY

By Herbert Kaufman

Despite the awful drubbing which Germany has just experienced on the Western Front, she is still a match for the combined forces of the Allies.

Without the assistance of American munition makers and food exporters, it is quite certain that her enemies would now be very much at her mercy.

Our entrance into the situation is the one element which ultimately guarantees the Kaiser's defeat. The Imperial Government is therefore in the position of a bully, with all the odds in favor of thrashing an opponent, who is suddenly pulled away by an on-looker and held while the other fellow proceeds to turn the tables and pummel him into submission.

Therefore, it is logical that Germany should hate us with an insane ferocity that argues no mercy in the unlikely, but possible event of her victory.

This possibility will become a probability in proportion to the immediacy of our preparation to fulfil the responsibility we've assumed.

Assured of reinforcements when needed, our Allies will hurl their full strength against the Central Powers and capitalize their present advantage to the utmost. But if we fall down on our contract and do not deliver the assistance on which, we are pledged when it is expected, the consequences are shuddering to contemplate.

This war has by no means reached a decisive stage, but we can determine the decision by universal military service, with a whole-hearted co-operation of industrial resources of the Republic. The eleventh hour is ten hours late: We can save men, save months and save millions through prompt and vigorous action.

If we dilly-dally, argue, trust to luck and place too much hope in an early peace, von Hindenburg's ruthless battalions will Belgumize America, German war vessels will pound our coasts and women and children, as well as men will know how terrible war can be made.

If Germany can reach this side at all, she will come as the conqueror of Europe, as a desolating and despoiling Hun, burning with rage and avid cupidity—to humble our pride, to loot our wealths, to smash us.

If fear and selfishness are holding you out of the ranks or tightening your grip on the bank account, fear and selfishness even more urgently demand that you enlist at once and lend every dollar and effort to the prosecution of an earnest and valorous campaign.

Once certain that the United States means to send all males of military age to the front and intends to spend whatever money is necessary to warrant a triumph for its arms, Berlin will quite probably surrender to the overwhelming handicap before our forces or fortunes are on the field.

Every slacker encourages another. One enlistment now has the moral value of two later on.

Seek to escape service and you're sure to undergo it. Procrastination threatens our chances.

There's no way out for us, except by pitching in. You'll have to fight in the end, so volunteer in the beginning.

Whatever time we lose in dallying must be made up by additional levies. Your shirking may eventually draw your fathers into the ranks.

Answer the President's call. Do your duty—today.

Church Building at Alpine Completed.

Little old Alpine steps to the front with the largest and best church in Apache county or in the St. Johns Stake, with the new structure that has just been dedicated. The new building has a seating capacity of from 300 to 400 in the main room, with four smaller rooms for class purposes. The structure is a frame building and is situated at the crest of the hill on which the town stands, thus giving a very pretty view. It is painted with a pretty tint of green and is so well proportioned that it gives that village an excellent set-off.

Bishop Tenney, John Jepson, Parley Burk and Joseph Jepson were among the leading spirits in getting the new edifice built.—The Observer.

Give us a federal food director. Jail the price boosting speculators. Keep prices down. Give our people an opportunity to eat three meals a day.

There are still a few spots left on this earth that are not involved in the war, but the Lord only knows where they are.

Germany declares there will be no let-up in the submarine war. Well, maybe there'll be a let-down.—Louisville Courier-Journal

According to press reports Turkey wants to make peace with Russia.
