

OH GIRLS! THE SUN WAS SHINING THE BIRDS WERE SINGING AND OLD MAN BAD LUCK BEAT IT

Most Unpopular Person Tried to Play on the Fence, But Failed to Garner Sufficient Votes in the Count to Get the Nomination—In Other Words, the "Hoi Polloi" Yelled in Accents Wild, "Kill the Umpire!"

By SALLY JACOBS

It was a lovely day for a murder. During the hottest hours of yesterday the Solons killed Old Man Bad Luck at the ball grounds in Mesa, and those who witnessed the killing declare that it was but the beginning of a series of like affairs. The jury, while in sympathy with their dead brother, joined with the relatives of the murderers in demanding the recall of the judge, whose decisions from when the trial started until he resigned (?) at the eighth hour were indiscriminately rotten (person me, but they all said so). He was a most unpopular person and I doubt if Louis Trimble will ever have the opportunity of umpiring another game of baseball in the Salt River valley. I also doubt if he would if he could, for the fans certainly gave him hard and cruel treatment. If he has a conscience he at least can feel satisfied that if he did wrong he paid the price. He was all that disturbed the perfect happiness of the few Phoenixians who journeyed to the south side to see the third of the Phoenix-Mesa series of nine games. The jinx has been dispelled! All is well once more!

Hurrah and then another one, long and loud for the Lawmakers won, seven to five.

The very best little thing about the event aside from it being so informal (no one wears smart frocks and ice cream cones and soda pop were perfectly good form) was the way Captain Barrett's men behaved. The trip across the river must have refreshed them greatly, for they were all "right on the job," as the man behind me remarked. Our two new men are quite attractive though I think most of the grand-standers preferred Mr. Curley, the good looking catcher. He has such a neat little way of grasping the fouls and the balls thrown from the field are sure of like courteous treatment. Mr. Bone pitched for a time, but after he became weary Mr. O'Brien, fair, fat and forty, went to the mound. The ball, when once removed from his hands, goes swiftly and surely but Mr. O'Brien's manner is acceptable to the crowds. It takes him a long time to get started. But as I said after the start is made it's delightful. Mr. Billy Dodge played fast enough to make up for any other slowness of which he might have been accused. He's really a wonderful boy, and the other young chap, Mr. Kern Warren, did some marvelous playing. In the seventh inning, on the run he made a gorgeous catch in his gloved hand. Mr. Hobo Hathaway redeemed himself for past errors by a half dozen stunning catches and runs and things. By this time I think Mr. Hathaway should receive the recognition of his team and be given the official costume.

It was just like old times to have Mr. Kimberly in center field and the talkative fan next to me said: "Look at the ball—it's right in the well when it goes to Kimberly." It must have been a prohibition joke and I didn't understand it.

"No one has it on Barton when it comes to ball," yelled some one after one of Mr. Barton's vicious strikes. Wouldn't you hate to have that man for your enemy? The way he goes after anything he dislikes is a caution and he's not fond of Mesa, evidently.

Remember when you were quite a youngster how you saved the best until the last? Captain Barrett, of some run fame, played first base, and it was really his best performance in that capacity. Everyone spoke of his head work and we were all immensely pleased last evening by the brilliant way he led his men to victory.

You know the Mesa men are ever so much nicer than you'd believe, just meeting them casually. Mr. Pomeroy is really a favorite of mine, because he has a fascinating way of throwing the ball. I'd like to mention all the others, because they certainly do appreciate it, but I'll have to wait until next week when new lights will be thrown on their characters when they meet their friends from Miami. They have engagements for the thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth in Mesa. Yes—Mesa—that's the rub.

Why do you suppose they meet there and not at Riverside?

You don't think—

I wonder if it's because they prefer not being seen.

Editorial Note: This is awful long but ain't you glad you read it?

RAILROADS PROTEST AGAINST VALUATION

State Board of Equalization Having a Busy Week—Mining Companies' Taxes to Be Raised

Representatives of five railway companies of the state appeared before the state board of equalization yesterday to protest against the 1914 valuation placed on their property by the state tax commission.

John W. Bergey, tax agent and H. S. Harding, his assistant, appeared on behalf of the El Paso and Southwestern Railroad company and filed a protest against the valuation placed on the company's lines in Arizona.

The Arizona Eastern and Phoenix and Eastern were represented by J. Gibson Taylor, and the Arizona and New Mexico by Norman Carmichael, vice president and general manager of the railway.

The valuation of $114,500 per mile placed on the Ray and Gila Valley was attacked by L. S. Cates, superintendent, and A. J. McClean, secretary and treasurer of the company. Judge Kent also appeared as counsel for the company.

Notice to the effect that the state board of equalization contemplates increasing the 1914 valuation of the property of the Phoenix Railway company to the extent of $35,000 was sent out yesterday. The proposed raise is on account of the new line to the Asylum road and the double tracking of the Indian School car line. The company is given until Saturday at a clock to appear and show cause why such increase should not be made.

That a number of mining companies of the state may prepare for an increase in the assessed valuation of their property was made known yesterday when formal notice was served on the Calumet and Arizona, the American Smelting and Refining company, the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting company and the Miami Copper company of contemplated raises in the valuation of mining machinery. Hearings in the matter of the proposed increase are set for Saturday, August 8.
