

TERRITORIAL

Pima county is on a cash basis. The Yavapai county jail has eleven occupants. Safford is to have a foundry—so says report. Phoenix is receiving about thirty carloads of freight daily. Arizona has a mining camp in the southeast part of the Territory called Klondike. The Odd Fellows of Tempe are preparing to build a hall for the order in that little city. Phoenix has one hundred and eleven houses under construction which looks like a building boom. All boys under sixteen years of age in Prescott must get off of the streets by nine o'clock at night. A farmer living near Tempe sold his hay crop off of his sixty acres this season for seven hundred dollars. Last week a two year old child, son of Jess Wanslee of Graham county, fell into the Graham canal and was drowned. The congressional mill has been grinding for several days, but hasn't ground out any grit up to date that is worth anything to the people. The leasing of the school lands in Maricopa county increased the funds in the county treasury to the amount of two thousand four hundred and fifty dollars. A Chinaman at Tucson was sent to jail a few days ago for drunkenness. This is the first time a Chinaman was ever arrested in Tucson for this kind of an offense. The city council of Tucson has passed an ordinance prohibiting the wearing of hats, bonnets or other head covering except skull caps, lace scarfs or other close fitting head covering, in theaters or other places of public amusement. This is a good ordinance and every town council in the Territory should pass a similar law. The Phoenix Daily Herald says: Occasionally Maricopa county secures a grand jury that is willing to do its sworn duty, a grand jury that has left its pot of white wash at home. It is a good bit easier for the citizens of the county to pay for a week or a month of grand jury fees than to pay for such embezzlements as they have been called on in the past to put up for, if the grand jury does its duty every time there will be no embezzlements. Experience has taught us that grand jurors are like other men, that they are often inclined to white wash some official or prominent citizen who has swindled the county out of thousands of dollars, and indict some poor wretch for stealing a dollar or two. There is too much white washing done by grand juries and they should not only be criticised, but they should be prosecuted where they knowingly disregard their duty and the law.

New Game Law. Book agents may be killed from October 1 to September 1; spring poets from March 1 to June 1; scandal-mongers from April 1 to December 1; umbrella borrowers from August 1 to November 1, and February 1 to May 1; while every man who accepts a paper for two years, but when the bill is presented says, "I never ordered it," may be killed on sight without reserve or relief from valuation or appraisal laws, and be buried face downward, without benefit of clergy.—Ex. Willie Smith was playing with the Jones boys. His mother called him and said: "Willie, don't you know those Jones boys are bad boys for you to play with?" "Yes, mama," replied Willie. "I know that; but don't you know that I am a good boy for them to play with?" Rob's father was a minister and every morning at prayers he used to pray that this child may be brought up in the nature and admonition of the Lord." So one night when Rob had finished the prayers he wished to lengthen them, and, trying to recall his father's phrase, he said: "Oh, Lord, take care of this boy, and— and—bring him up in fine style."

The Tucson Daily Citizen, one of the brightest dailies in the Territory says: "Official importations will be at a discount after the November elections in 1893." In speaking of the home rule bill introduced by our delegate in congress it utters a grand truth in the following words: "The bill introduced by Hon. M. A. Smith in congress emancipating the people of Arizona from partisan patronage and granting them political independence touches a popular chord. If submitted to a vote, ninety-nine out of every hundred would endorse the measure, so popular has it become.

Little Joe, playing in the street, was called by his mother, who saw a storm approaching. He ran for the gate. Right there he was seized by a sudden gust of wind which whirled him past it. The mother reached over the fence and picked him up. That evening, to his papa, he said: "Papa, it's an ossel dood sing I've got a muzzer, else I'd been blown away." Tully was 41 years old and lived in Wankegan. He was dilatory in coming to the table, and his father finally spoke rather severely to him. He climbed into his high chair and after a moment, he said: "Papa, will you let me have a card?" "Yes, Tully," and he handed him one. "Papa, will you let me have a pencil?" "Yes, sir, here is one. But what do you want of a card and pencil when breakfast is being served?" "Well, sir, papa, you haven't been kind to me this morning, and I am going to write a note to God, and he'll go for you, sir."

The little girl was visiting in Chicago. After a romp she climbed upon a chair in front of the fireplace and was very quiet for some time. We wondered what mischief she was planning next, when she remarked: "I'd like to know how folks know heaven's a so-much better town than this, when they've never been there." This same child, when still younger, was trying to toss a ball to the ceiling. When her mama told her she must not throw it so high she exclaimed: "Well, maybe the Lord'll catch it."

A little boy was sleeping with his Irish nurse one night, when an awful thunderstorm arose. The girl immediately fell on her knees and began to pray. The little boy watched her for a time, but finally said: "It's no use for you to pray, Mary; God's a Yankee and he won't hear you." "Charlie, your father is calling you." Charlie—Yes, I hear him; but he is calling "Charlie." I don't need to go till he yells "Charles."

Equal to the Emergency. "I want," said the recently married man in the novelty store, "a lady's belt." "Yes, sir," said the polite shop empress. "What size?" A bluish mantled the customer's brow and he swallowed twice in quick succession. Then he said: "I don't know exactly. Let me have a yardstick, please. And as he placed it along the inside of his arm, from shoulder to wrist, the shop empress remarked beneath her breath to her chum: "He ain't the fool he looks is he Jennis?"
