

LAST DAY TODAY TO AID FUND FOR SALVATION ARMY

Phoenix Citizens Are Urged To Unite on Final Day in Effort to Pay Worthy Tribute to Great Organization

Today is the last day to subscribe to the Salvation Army Home Service fund, and should mark a thoroughly and wonderfully busy day for the committee in charge. With approximately $25,000 to raise on the final day, it seems like a very large task, but Phoenix has never failed to make good on any task of this kind, and with the organization of all citizens into an active working committee, the task is not at all impossible.

large number of volunteer workers so that every one may be given an opportunity to subscribe to the limit to this great cause. All workers who desire to assist should report to Mr. Dulinage at McArthur Bros. at 9 o'clock.

The following women already have volunteered and promise to afford a real contest in the matter of securing subscriptions to any others who may volunteer. The Misses Helen Fife, Virginia Davis, Gass, Pearl McElhoney, Ruth Tetts, Grace Cousins, Alice Chapman and Mrs. Fred Weir, Ed. Luke, Ruth Fritchle, John T. Urner.

MANY INSPECT WORK OF GRADE PUPILS ON LAST DAY OF SCHOOL

Every pupil who attended the graded schools of Phoenix the past month was represented at a public exhibition held at the Monroe school building all day yesterday, the closing day of the school year.

Although the storm unfortunately came in the early afternoon just when the heaviest attendance was expected, nevertheless there were many men and women who took advantage of the open house offered and visited the exhibition. They were given every opportunity to examine the work of the children and to get a better idea of what has been accomplished during the past school year.

The work was displayed in the spacious halls of the Monroe school building and in many of the class rooms. The exhibition was open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock last evening.

Yesterday was the fifth annual exhibition day of the Phoenix grade schools, and was the biggest that ever has been held here in preceding years. No exhibition was held last year due to the prevalence at that time of influenza in this city.

Little difficulty was experienced in replacing the cooks and waiters affected by the decision of the owners of the cafe, they stated, and added that efforts continue as large despite the efforts of the pickets to acquaint the public with the fact that the restaurant "is unfair to organized labor."

The largest passenger airplane ever built, a Caproni, is fitted with equipment similar to a Pullman car and carries 30 people.

music for the dance will be "The Bacchanalian Chorus," from "Samson and Delilah," played by the entire orchestra.

The four main divisions or classes of work on show were the manual training, household economics, art and academic departments. In the academic department were examples of student work in English, spelling, arithmetic, history, physiology and geography. Some of the manual training pieces, which the pupils themselves did not care to keep, met with a ready sale.

School now is over for the year, the long summer vacation beginning today. Books are laid away and classes forgotten for the happy summer vacation, the time nearly every school boy and some school girls look forward to with impatience.

ONE MORE CAFE JOINS OPEN SHOP MOVEMENT

The latest addition to the ranks of the open shop restaurants in Phoenix is the Saratoga Cafe, 11 West Washington street, the owners making their declaration in favor of the open shop on Wednesday night.

Yesterday pickets were placed in front of the cafe by the local union of the cooks and waiters during the non-time evening meals. There was no disorder and business proceeded as usual, the presence of the pickets having no appreciable effect on the daily volume of business done, the proprietors said.

AMUSEMENTS

The Arbor
Tonight marks the opening of the summer season at the Arbor. It is the first night of the happy time during which dancers of Phoenix and community will find King Brady and other three members of his talented orchestra quartet out "At the End of the Trail" to dispense dance melodies every night. Thursday was the last dance of the American appetite, when the weather is again cool enough to dance indoors with comfort. Those who have been dancing there will find the same high quality of pleasures and the same people to enjoy them out at the Arbor and at Forest Park, the summer amusement resorts managed by Omar Toft.

Harold Lloyd at the Columbia
Harold Lloyd's greatest comedy, "Bumping Into Broadway," will conclude a three-day stay at the Columbia theater today. This special feature is one number of a big double program for the last times today, Elsie Janis in "A Regular Girl" being the other feature.

Both offerings are of unusual value, far above the ordinary standard. There's a million laughs on the program, for comedy reigns supreme throughout the entire offering.

Lloyd's latest comedy creation is the best thing he has ever done before the camera and it entitled him to equal rank with Charlie Chaplin as the best comedian of the day. It's just one laugh after another, each succeeding one just a little heartier than the one before.

Miss Janis is a regular girl in "A Regular Girl," which is, in brief, a resume of the work she did in France among our soldiers, sailors and marines. It is one of the best things she has ever done, a comedy-drama that will bring forth both tears and laughter.

Will Rogers' weekly "Illiterate Digest" is another laugh producer, while the Lyons-Moran comedy and the Ford Weekly round out a well-balanced program.

Forest Park
Robert Foxen, jazz cornetist, has joined Toft's novelty orchestra at Forest Park. His playing of the last few nights has caused a real sensation and he has been pronounced a "cornetist supreme" by everyone who has heard him.

Previous to coming to Phoenix he was with Paul Whitman's band at "The Ambassador" in Santa Barbara, and his addition to the already unequalled aggregation of jazz dispensers is causing no end of favorable comment.

Tonight and Sunday Olive Ann Alcorn is to dance her farewell to Phoenix people. She has selected for this purpose two dances of unusual beauty—a Greek cymbal dance and an Egyptian boy dance. In the latter she will appear in a costume copied from a figure in an ancient Egyptian frieze, and the lines and decorations pictured have been followed very exactly. The Announcement is also made that the matinee dance tomorrow afternoon, and evening dance tomorrow night will be Sunday features at Riverside park.

Griffith Classic at Strand
"Scarlet Days," D. W. Griffith's classic of 1919, offers at the Strand, where the attraction enters the last day of its engagement today, the opportunity for witnessing one of the most appealing romances of the west ever filmed. It is not in the least the spectacular, never resorts to the braggadocio nor the usual western dramatic atmosphere, but on the contrary, tells in the romantic style best expressed by Bret Harte, its story is the most romantic and adventurous period California ever knew. Its types are carefully drawn, and with that skill which has made D. W. Griffith the wizard of screencraft that he is acknowledged to be by the best authorities living, "Scarlet Days" weaves its love story convincingly, compellingly and appealingly.

It is not stating it too strongly to say that "Scarlet Days" is one of the very best western classics ever filmed, and such was the unanimous opinion of the Strand patrons throughout the day yesterday.

The Outing Chester pictures and the Fox news complete the bill.

Tomorrow starts the engagement of Constance Talmadge in "A Temperamental Wife."

Dustin Farnum at the Lamara
Dustin Farnum, appearing in Paramount's brilliant success, "The Parson of Panamint" is the Lamara's offering for the closing screenings today. This clever star never had a better vehicle than the present offering. He is the type his followers have learned to love. They have come to look to Dustin Farnum for that happy medium of screen star—not too dramatic—not too light—but just a real he-man and Dustin Farnum has never disappointed.

It is such a story—this "Parson of Panamint"—and for this reason, it has proven a most enjoyable program. It is augmented by the Burton Holmes travelogue, and a specially selected subject.

Tomorrow comes Shirley Mason in "Her Elephant Man."

Riverside Park
Today will find another merry throng of happy people enjoying the respite from the heat in the waters of the Riverside park pool. The big plunge is all cleaned, filled with fresh, clear and heated water, and the big white "swimmin' hole" will be filled all through the day and evening.

And in the evening the moving picture show will be conducted in the big open-air theater, where the excellent program will be screened. And there is plenty of room to watch the pictures without going into the theater proper, for they can be seen from clear across the pool, and even from the
