HIS "GIRLS" ARE HIS BRIGHTEST MEMORY OF THE PIONEER DAYS

JESSE W. ELLISON

Boys and girls, particularly girls of the pioneer days were all that really counted, in the opinion of J. W. Ellison of Payson and Phoenix. Recollections of Indian raids, Pleasant Valley wars, early political life in which he figured are alive in the memory of Mr. Ellison along with other thrills of the 60's, but the brightest memory to him is the way his family stood by him. He does not give himself a particle of credit for the big fortune he made in cattle. "Shucks, no! The girls did it, and the girls who had the most to do with it was Duet, now Mrs. George W. P. Hunt, wife of the United States minister to Siam, who, according to her father, "can double discount any cowboy hand he's seen around here."
 The Ellisons came to Arizona from Shackleford county, Texas, in 1885. Part of the trip was made in a freight wagon, the family locating in what is now known as the Ellison ranch, 20 miles northeast of Payson. "When I left Texas, conditions there were just about as they are now," said Mr. Ellison in his review of the past. "In '35, when I left there, I bought yearlings for $7 and $8 which I later sold here for $20, for 'had times" had not yet reached Arizona. I sold enough to pay my expenses, although I was compelled later to sell my stock at $6 a head."

 Mr. Ellison said that in one way and another he lost until he had to admit to himself that he was flat broke.
 "It was not only clean broke, but I owed $10,000 and I not only had to face it, but I had to make my family realize it, my wife and daughters who had had everything that money could buy."
 When it came to him, Mr. Ellison said, that the girls had to be told, he chose to tell them out in the open. Out there in the woods he spoke to them as man to man.
 "I gave them my financial rating and then I charged them not to seek consolation in the arms of any other man, and there were plenty of them as there are now."
 "We helped you spend it when you had it, and we'll stay with you until you have it again," my girls said to me, and they stood by me. "The girls" to this day have it all over the modern cowboy, the father declares.

 "They were all good ropers and good shots and, believe me, they worked like Turks. They drove cattle instead of playing bridge and they lived on beans when we could get corn and sweets of any kind were unknown. For five years we did not have a bit of sugar for our coffee."
 "The nearest neighbors of the Ellisons were eight and ten miles distant. The children on these 'nearby' farms came to the Ellison ranch to school, for young Lena Ellison, who had been to school in Texas, agreed to teach the youngsters.
 "The neighbors formed the habit of going to the Ellisons in time of trouble, and in '86 when word was passed that Geronimo was on the warpath, men, women and children ran to the Ellison ranch for protection. This proved to be neither more nor less than a scare, for the Indian chief was at that time headed for Mexico, according to Mr. Ellison, who never-theless found himself host to a house party for a month. A few years later another report of an Indian raid was brought and a fort was built at the Ellison ranch. Excitement ran high for three weeks and then the news reached Ellison that Geronimo had again crossed the river.

 "Only scares," as the Geronimo rumors failed to materialize, but they lent color to the existence in the busy cow camp.
 Mr. Ellison recalls the Pleasant Valley war between the factions that were fighting for 34 years. Although he was stationed directly between the warring cattle and sheep men, he took no part in their controversies, which resulted in the death of at least 30 men.
 "It would have gone on forever if we had not succeeded in catching a man for sheriff who refused to take sides. Because he did nothing, I say 'Bucky O'Neill ended that trouble."

Twenty-Five Years of Pioneer Leadership

Have Cast About The Name of Korricks' An Atmosphere Of Dependability Which Lives In The Minds of Many Phoenicians

The Korrick Idea—Pioneer of Low Prices!

The Korrick Idea Is—TO UNDERSSELL
 Our rigid censorship over style and quality, as well, assures certain satisfaction.

How Do We Do It?
 First—We buy good merchandise as low as a specially trained corps of buyers can secure it.
 Then—set a selling price which includes a small profit.
 These low prices turn our stock over time after time each year.
 We find that a small profit, repeated, is better than a big profit.
 And it is a GREAT THING for our customers.
