OUR COUNTRY

All of us who have observed and studied the signs of the times must feel and know that our government is facing a great crisis, perhaps the most serious and critical in the nation's history.

The world has undergone many marvelous changes in the last quarter of a century and wonderful advancement has been made in every line of human endeavor.

We do things today upon a grand and magnificent scale. Our capitalistic classes are organized together upon a scale never even dreamed of before in the world's history.

In the very near future the mass of our citizenship will consist of three or four powerful organizations divided into hostile camps, bending every effort to compass their own ends and all working in opposition to each other.

Government ownership of all public utilities would bring about this result. Is there any other remedy? This is the problem for our statesmen to solve.

INJUNCTION NOTES

One of the many objections to Government by Injunction is that one person acts as law maker, judge and jury in the same case.

The judge thereupon issues an order either in blanket form or directed to certain persons, commanding that the said specified acts should not be committed and in case any person disobeys the order they are arrested and without trial by jury, are sentenced to jail for contempt of court.

If twelve men after hearing the evidence find a person guilty of committing a crime he cannot object to imprisonment or such penalty as the law may fix for the crime.

But to give to one man the power to say what is against the interest of the people and to give him the further power of issuing an order that those things which he holds to be against the public interest shall not be done, and to give him the power if they are done to send men to jail without a jury trial who are guiltless of crime, is placing too much power in the hands of one person, and is also getting very far away from American ideals and American conceptions of justice and liberty.

United States Federal Judge Brown of Rhode Island and Judge Evans of Kentucky issued an order against the federal authorities, enjoining them from enforcing the war time prohibition law, and the sale of intoxicating liquor is being carried on openly in both states.

If the laboring man is to have a presidential ticket in the field next year, the one man who stands above all the rest as a guarantee of a square deal to those who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow is Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court.

A learned legal authority gives out some free advice. He says there are only two classes of men who can avoid paying alimony—the man who stays single and the man who stays married.
