BANKER CLEWS' WEEKLY REVIEW.

Optimism seems to be the keynote of Banker Clews' weekly review of Wall street and general conditions. Referring to the April opening of the stock market, he says that "had it not been that stocks were generally in strong hands, the decline might have been still more marked."

Railroad earnings are making very satisfactory gains, and a heavy business is believed to be in prospect. The tariff question, Mr. Clews says, "will not down and must again become the subject of political controversy, the high cost of food making the issue all the more inevitable."

Speaking with direct relation to the stock market, Mr. Clews says: "As to the future, the present period of depression cannot last. Prices receded owing to the temporary condition of the money market, the congestion in bonds and the disturbed political situation, but these conditions have been amply discounted."

As to the future, the present period of depression cannot last. Prices receded owing to the temporary condition of the money market, the congestion in bonds and the disturbed political situation, but these conditions have been amply discounted.

Among the earlier moves of Mayor Gaynor of New York city was a notification to the saloonkeepers associations that they need pay no more blackmail. Since then, he has ordered that the practice of summary arrests of liquor dealers, the club with which blackmail has been connected, be abandoned in favor of the orderly and law-prescribed procedure of the issuance of warrants by the proper authorities.

Reviewing the attitude of Connecticut's Congressmen upon the question of Cannonism, the Hartford Courant says "Mr. Hill was unfortunately absent when the vote was taken, and it might have helped up the man who treated him and his state with such unprecedented discourtesy."

Under the corporate income tax law, as interpreted by President Taft, the sworn returns of corporations are only open to inspection at the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury. The House passed Friday a provision that "all corporations' tax returns shall be open to inspection only upon the order of the President, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by secretary of the treasury and approved by the President."

Representative Murdock of Kansas, one of the insurgent leaders in the House, states the purposes of the insurgent movement in Congress, in the North American Review, as follows: "Now those who are called insurgents desire (1) to make the Speaker ineligible to a place on the Committee on Rules, (2) to take away the power of the Speaker to refuse recognition when recognition is in order."

INSURGENCY IN ITS VARIED FORMS

"What constitutes Insurgency," has become a question of wide discussion and equally wide interest. It is differently defined in different sections and bodies, and there is difficulty in finding a definition which will fit all conditions.

Setting aside Mr. Roosevelt who is called the first Insurgent because he openly, and at times virulently, antagonized the wealth-domination policy of his party, Insurgency may be said to have been born in the Middle West and to have cast off its swaddling clothes in the U. S. Senate where it has since grown to vigorous manhood.

In the House, Insurgency began with attacks upon "Cannonism," and owing to the blunder of not carrying its opening success to the logical conclusion of ousting the Speaker and electing an Insurgent to the chair, there is still work for it to do.

In the evident opinion of President Taft, opposition to the Aldrich-Cannon interpretation of the Republican platform is Insurgency, to be punished by the withdrawal of Federal patronage from the members of Congress who are forced by their honest convictions to become guilty of it.

In Connecticut, Insurgency has not yet taken an active form. Thus far, only one prominent Republican, Hon. Stiles Judson, has been declared infected with the disease of Insurgent independence, and we are disinclined to credit the charge.

Possibly, an accurate general description of Insurgency would be, Active and Effective Dissatisfaction with the Existing Order of Things, as exemplified in the Policy and Practice of the Republican Party.

When a member asks it, (3) to have the House select its own standing committees. There is no effort by the insurgents, and there has been none to do away with any of the procedure which makes for expedition in public business.

While not exactly a "blue law" it is said that this is the first time that there has been any interference by the authorities in recent years, at least with this "harmless form of Sunday amusement." One of the players, an undertaker, remarked upon being presented before the Chief of Police that if the "sit of blues" continued he might have to officiate at the obsequies of this pleasure loving community, which he thought was rapidly approaching that state of dissolution known as a "dead town."

NO KICK COMING ON AMATEUR BASEBALL ON THE SABBATH

Christian Endeavor Head Outlines Position of Union on Sunday Observance.

Arthur E. Warner, president of the Bridgeport Union of Christian Endeavor Societies, makes public through the Farmer the attitude of the union toward the proposed Sunday baseball, pointing out in the following communication that professional ball is what is aimed at and not amateur ball, which was at first generally supposed.

Regarding strictly amateur baseball, the Christian Endeavor Union has taken no action and, as far as is known none is contemplated. Following the passage of the motion picture prosecuting attorney and the police authorities whatever evidence of violation may become known to them.

BLUE LAW RAID ON CARD PLAYERS

One Sunday Violator, an Undertaker, Says Middletown Needs His Services.

Middletown, April 4.—Variety was given to the third of the "blue law" Sundays under the administration of Mayor William Clark Fisher, chief enforcer of economics in Wesleyan University, when the police entered a local hall and captured a dozen men who were playing cards.

Pending the decision by Judge Peaine in the case of the fruit and ice cream dealers arrested a week ago for keeping their shops open, with improvised arrangements for serving meals the local shops were all closed yesterday. No business was done, except in the drug stores, which under a decision of Judge Peaine, rendered two years ago, have a right to keep open for the sale of necessities.

Policeman Spatcher, the second member of the local force who resigned because there was not pay enough to compensate him for the extra work of enforcing the Sunday law, after waiting for some time for the carrying out of a promise to raise the policeman's pay, has finally left the force. Neither was the resignation filled. A contest is on in the administration over the appointment of the supernumerary next in line for a regular policeman's job, because he is a native of Italy.

London, April 4.—Today's news from British Somaliland of a fresh outbreak on the part of Mohammed Abdullah, or "Mad Mullah," is giving critics of the government's colonial policy the best inning they have had in a long time.
