Punishment For Smokers. Tobacco was first carried into Turkey by English sailors, and its use was quickly prohibited, chiefly on religious grounds. As in Russia, a tradition was discovered prohibiting its use by the faithful Mohammed, it was said, had prophesied that in future ages some of his followers would smoke an herb called tobacco, but these would be unbelievers. Sultan Amurath IV, strictly prohibited its use. Search was made for smokers, and when they were found tobacco pipes were driven through their cheeks and roils of tobacco hung as collars round their necks. This aroused, they were mounted on asses, facing the wall, and driven through the streets to be hanged as a warning to smokers after tobacco.

Some Consolation. Patient (gloomily)—I don't seem to be gaining very fast, doctor. Doctor (cheerfully)—You can't expect to get well at one jump. You will have to regain your health gradually day by day—sort of on the installment plan, as it were. Patient (brightening up)—Well, doctor, if this thing keeps on much longer I'm afraid you'll have to collect your bill in the same way.—New York Journal.

VACCINATION KEEPS WORKER OUT OF SHOP

Ralph Onett Compelled to Relinquish His Position

With his left arm badly infected and showing an ugly looking ulcer midway between the elbow and shoulder, he says, as a result of being vaccinated three weeks ago, Ralph Onett is undergoing surgical treatment at the emergency hospital. The outcome is as yet in doubt. Dr. E. F. Friedman treated the sore this afternoon, found some improvement and learned the story of the case, which is attracting attention on account of the controversy concerning the benefits of this preventative measure against small pox. Onett explains that, previous to coming to America three years ago, he was employed in England as a railroad conductor. Then hearing of working conditions in the States he arranged for the ocean voyage. He thought that the time would be excellent being vaccinated and sought out the ship's surgeon. As a result, he says, he landed in Bridgeport with a badly swollen arm. He worried little as he had experienced the same, according to his story, twice before when he had undergone the same treatment. A position was secured at the plant of the Locomobile company but he found it difficult to work on account of the arm. He has been laying off for several days and is somewhat downcast on account of the information that it may take 30 days or two weeks before the arm will cease paining him.

Opera Bouffe Garbage War Goes Merrily At Town Farm

Later the wagons were ordered further up the road and entrance was effected to farm property.

Before Judge Joel H. Reed in the Superior Court yesterday afternoon, Attorney David S. Day, counsel for Charles C. Fischer asked for an injunction restraining the city from carrying out the order of the Board of Health not to deliver any more garbage to Fischer for reduction. City Attorney John S. Pullman appeared for the city and argued against the granting of the injunction. After hearing the arguments Judge Reed decided that Mr. Fischer's request, in case the order of the Board of Health was carried out, would be a suit for damages against the city, and he refused to grant the injunction.

At a special meeting of the Board of Health held in the mayor's office yesterday afternoon, John T. King, collector of the garbage, was given the contract to bury the garbage in the grounds of Lakeview home. He is to receive 75 cents a ton until December 1 and from that date until April 1 he is to receive $1 per ton.

Mayor Wilson said this morning that the Board of Health is considering plans to make disposal of the garbage in a manner that will be absolutely sanitary and give offense to no one. The mayor said: "I have been investigating garbage disposal lately and the plan I favor calls for absolute destruction of the waste matter rather than any process by which by-products are obtained from it."

In an executive session held yesterday in the Mayor's office at which the Board of Health commissioners participated, a contract for the disposal of garbage in the city of Bridgeport was given to John T. King. According to the terms of the contract which is to be ratified later at the regular meeting of the board, Tuesday next, King is to receive 75 cents per ton for the disposal of every ton of refuse collected by his company. During the winter months from December 1 to April 1, he will receive compensation at the rate of $1 per ton. It is understood that the disposal can be made in any way he may decide, though the city must furnish him with a suitable place to bury it until arrangements can be made to dispose of it otherwise.

He was yesterday instructed to cart it to a section of the town farm and there bury it in trenches from six to ten feet in depth. The Board of Health were later organized into a committee of the whole to investigate ways and means of disposing of it in a more satisfactory manner. They will at once try to ascertain if it can be sold to fertilizer firms, or whether incineration is practical.

Clerk David S. Lynch, health inspector, was ordered by the board to inspect the work of burial and to see that it is done in a sanitary manner.

Charles Fischer is alleged to have said that he will lose about $10,000 invested in the plant and equipment and is expected to fight the abrogation of his contract to a finish. His attorney, David S. Day, when seen today refused to discuss the question. It is believed that a suit in equity will now be brought against the city.

P. W. Behrens, Jr., president of the Board of Charities and chairman of the Lakeview Home committee, when informed of the action of Superintendent Merie Cowles in refusing to permit the John T. King garbage carts to enter upon the Lakeview Home grounds said:

The Lakeview committee, composed of the Commissioner of Health and myself have issued written instructions to Superintendent Cowles not to permit garbage to be carried upon the town farm until adequate pits have been dug for the reception of garbage. He is undoubtedly carrying out our orders.

"While we must permit the burial of garbage upon city property when insisted by the mayor, yet the sanitary matter of the Home over which we have jurisdiction must be protected by us in their health. We can have no repetition of the sickness which was formerly caused by the scattering of garbage near the home and close to the surface.

"When the pits are properly dug here we shall have no objection to the teams entering and disposing of the garbage. In the interim Supt. Cowles has our order and is expected to see them carried out."

John T. King, when told that his men had been refused admission to the grounds upon the pretext that no pits had been dug, said that it could not be expected he would be able to have pits excavated today and he had expected to dump the garbage temporarily upon the surface covering it with chloride of lime and earth. He did not believe the pits could be ready until tomorrow, although he would at once send a force of men there to begin work.

When asked what he intended to do during the interim he said he expected to dump the garbage upon the grounds of the town farm tonight.

BITTER ATTACK ON SULZER BY JUDGE PARKER

brought up to the stage of the halting of the judges, today, by former State Senator Edgar T. Brackett, who closed the case for the board of impeachment managers. In the course of it he asserted that former State Senator Stephen J. Stillwell, who is now serving a term in Sing Sing prison as a barterer of his legislative vote and influence, "might have sat at the feet of Governor Sulzer and learned crime."

"And this is the pharisee," he said, "who, pointing to the width of his phylactery in proof of his own virtue, demanded that Stillwell resign—Stillwell who, if all charges against him were true and more, could still have sat at the feet of man and learned crime, even as Saul sat at the feet of Gamalliel and learned all the wisdom of ancient Jews."

From the beginning of the impeachment proceedings, Mr. Brackett said, there had been a persistent attempt to terrorize the members of the court and every person associated with the prosecution.

"Every means known to the demagogue has been attempted to accomplish it," he said. "Against all this," he continued, "I hold up to you the simple old you took, at the beginning of the trial. Its solemn words are fresh with you and I know that in their presence the least thoughtful man will be sobered to his full sense of his duty as I know, too, that this wave of clamor will never arise in influence to the level of the soles of your feet."

Mr. Brackett then launched into a discussion of the evidence supporting the accusations in the fourth of the articles of impeachment, charging that Governor Sulzer sought to prevent testimony before the Frawley committee. The attorney held that the article was broad enough to include the alleged attempt of the governor to dissuade Henry Morganthau from testifying in regard to his $10,000 campaign contribution.

"The damning character of the defendant's request is apparent at a glance," continued Mr. Brackett. "He wanted Mr. Morganthau to perjure himself to save him. The defendant, from the result of his previous crime in not reporting the Morganthau contribution, made to him during the campaign, thereby brought himself precisely within the section of the code and precisely within the article."

The alleged request of the governor to Duncan Peck that he deny his contribution of $500, Mr. Brackett put in the same category.

"The testimony of Allan Ryan is still to be considered," he continued. "It stands here without contradiction of any kind. The defendant asked him to see Senator Root and have members of this court solicited to vote in his interest, to dismiss these proceedings; failing that, to see Mr. Murphy for the same purpose, saying he would do whatever was right if he could be freed from the impeachment proceedings."

"This is the black evidence convicting him under article four. The thing urged by the defendant stands out in all its detestable lines. He urged Morganthau to perjure himself, he urged Peck to perjure himself and denigrate the name of doing so—and he urged Ryan to tamper with this court to the end that he might be acquitted."

"And through and over it all runs the foulest of crimes connected with the administration of justice, the subornation of perjury and an intention of the defendant himself to commit perjury. God in heaven, can more be required to convict this defendant and remove him from his high place and forever disqualify him from association with law abiding men?"

"Knowing full well, appreciating to the utmost the disgrace and degradation that must come upon this most unhappy man by your verdict of guilty, I still beg you not to think you will mitigate his punishment by a judgment of acquittal of the charges here proved. It will not be your action that will render him infamous for all the future. That future is already his before you speak. If he take the wings of the morning and fly to the uttermost parts of the earth the record of his disgrace is there before him to meet and greet and abide with him."

"If this act under which we have rested in security all the century and a third of our natural life, under which the state has been the leader of all the sisterhood that accompanies the situation, shall fall at the point that we may not remove from high office men confessedly guilty of crime, then, indeed, are we of all men the most miserable."
