C. C. ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL MELLE'S VIEW

(Continued from Page 1) "Was there any arrangement made about salary?" "No, I did not know what my salary was to be."

Mr. Mellen's examination by Mr. Folk continued sharply. The former president of the New Haven answered the running fire of questions and maintained his composure. The examination shifted rapidly from one branch of the negotiations to another.

President Mellen's formal statement, submitted to the commission was as follows: "Early in 1906, there were negotiations started between the Grand Trunk and the New Haven looking to the establishment of through routes for the interchange of passenger and freight traffic."

"The negotiations were more or less continuous and while at various times approaching an agreement, something with other connections of the New Haven was continually transpiring, the negotiations with the Grand Trunk on a basis which, but for the arrangement with the Canadian Pacific, would have been accepted and approved by the New Haven."

"It has always been my personal policy to make arrangements with connecting lines on practically a parity so there can be no feeling that the New Haven was permitting discrimination in favor of one or against another."

"The arrangement with the Canadian Pacific was a beneficial one to the industries and business on the line of the New Haven system and it reduced the rates to manufacturers located on the line of the New Haven to the extent of the differential rates permitted by the trunk line association applied on the business by the Canadian Pacific as compared with the rates on the business handled by the trunk line which later were always on a higher basis."

quition of the New York, Westchester and Boston. Mr. Mellen said: "As I recall the details, eight thousand shares of the New Haven were put in my hands in escrow to be exchanged for 24,000 shares of the Westchester stock. The Westchester people wanted to make the exchange at once but our people were not willing to go ahead with the transaction until the matters in connection with the Westchester road were settled and there were 18 different things in regard to getting the charter that we wanted settled."

"I shall look through everything I have so far to see that nothing desired is omitted. I shall bring every paper that has on it a mark indicating that it has any relation with the New Haven or any of its subsidiaries."
