

50,000 TO HEAR GOVERNOR TALK ON LABOR DAY

Special Platforms To Be Erected at Seaside Park Where Governor Baldwin With Staff Will Review Parade.

With an estimated influx of over 30,000 people to attend the great Labor Day parade and exercises to be held here on September 7, officials of the state and other cities are now expected to be present.

Governor Simon E. Baldwin, to whom an invitation was extended, has already written his acceptance to John J. O'Neill, secretary of the Central Labor Union, and the acceptance of his staff as well as other state heads is looked for at any time.

STATE OF CONNECTICUT EXECUTIVE CHAMBERS HARTFORD July 22nd, 1914.

Dear Sir:— Your letter of July 20th is received, and I shall be happy to participate in the parade at Bridgeport on Labor Day, Sept. 7th, pursuant to your polite invitation.

Simon E. Baldwin Mr. John J. O'Neill, Secretary Central Labor Union, Park Theater Bldg., Bridgeport.

Arrangements for the big day are rapidly progressing and the souvenir booklet and official program is well under way. Every trade organization in this city has taken a full page which will be devoted to all-time cuts of the officers and a history of the local Unions outside of the city are also applying for space in the spirit of loyalty and enthusiasm which has been evinced by labor organizations over the celebration.

It is planned to have the governor address the visitors at the afternoon events to be held in Seaside park. A special stand will be erected on the occasion, and in the open space it is planned that at least 50,000 people can hear the speech clearly and distinctly.

DEAD WOMAN OBJECTS TO ROUGH HANDLING

Waterbury, Conn., July 24.—Mrs. Elizabeth Tanner, 58, while being removed from the room where she "died" in an undertaker's transportation case, shocked the attendants with a wall of protest against the rough manner in which they were handling her body, and directed them, by no means mildly, to be more careful.

She had been supposed to be dead about two hours and was about to be carried to an operating table to be embalmed.

Mrs. Tanner had been all her life somewhat resigned to dying "when her time came," she said, when she recovered, but didn't want to be killed or to commit suicide.

"Why, the very idea of being hurried along so would be amusing if it didn't give you such a creepy feeling," she added when told all that had happened.

FARMER'S WIFE TOO ILL TO WORK

A Weak, Nervous Sufferer Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Kasota, Minn.—"I am glad to say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than anything else, and I had the best physician here. I was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work and suffered with pains low down in my right side for a year or more. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I feel like a different person. I believe there is nothing like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weak women and young girls, and I would be glad if I could influence anyone to try the medicine, for I know it will do all and much more than it is claimed to do."—Mrs. CLARA FRANKS, R. F. D. No. 1, Maplecrest Farm, Kasota, Minn.

Women who suffer from those distressing ailments peculiar to their sex should be convinced of the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health by the many genuine and truthful testimonials we are constantly publishing in the newspapers.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (Confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

TENER, STATESMAN AND LEAGUE PILOT, 51 TODAY

John Kinley Tener, former Congressman, Governor of Pennsylvania, and President of the National League, will pass his fifty-first milestone to-day. The pilot of the pioneer league of the great American game was born July 25, 1863, in County Tyrone, Ireland, and came to America at the age of nine. It was Justice Moody of the supreme bench who induced John Tener to enter upon his career as a ball player. He was tried out by Pittsburgh and Baltimore. He requested his release from the Baltimore club and went to the Haverhill club of the New England league for a few years' more experience, and was in that company for three years. In September, 1888, he pitched his first game for the Chicago White Stockings and received an awful drubbing, losing to Indianapolis by a score of 14 to 0. Nothing daunted, this youngster buckled right in and won his next four games in a very impressive manner. His work was sensational for the ten games following the terrific bombardment his curves received on his initial appearance. The winter of 1888-89 he made the grand tour of the globe with the Spalding combination. In 1889 he was one of Anson's mainstays, and his work was fine, pitching some remarkable games. In 1890 he joined forces with the Pittsburgh Brotherhood of the Players' league, of which he was secretary. His extra duties distracted him from his box work. However in his work as secretary and general all around ability to organize, and especially the part he took in helping to organize the Brotherhood league, he developed a smooth political touch that has helped him through his career and into the governorship of the second greatest state in the Union.

In announcing his plans as President of the National League, Gov. Tener said: "I have been interested in baseball, both as a player and as a layman, from my early youth. I have associated as a player with both managers, club owners and the players themselves. I have found the club owners and managers fair and the ball players I have found to possess as high a sense of honor as any other class of men. As a ball player I started in the New England League, but did not stay there long. I soon joined the Chicago Club, of which A. G. Spalding was President and the famous Anson Captain. I am glad that I have been a player, for upon entering my duties I feel that I can be impartial to all. I hope my relations will be pleasant, and that the sportsmanlike spirit will prevail in the business of the game as well as in the actual sport."

Washington's Home Gift Of English To The Americans

Ambassador Page Accepts House As Peace Centenary Ceremony.

Moving Pictures Of All Ceremonies Taken For Use in United States.

Sulgrave, Eng., July 25.—The first formal ceremony in honor of the 100 years of peace between the English speaking nations occurred here today when Sulgrave Manor, the home of the family of George Washington, purchased for $42,500 subscribed in Great Britain, was handed over to the members of the Centenary committee as a gift to the American people.

This quaint village was in holiday attire in honor of the occasion. The visiting party consisted of the American ambassador, Walter H. Page, the Duke of Teck, Lord Shaw, Shirley Benn, member of the House of Commons, Sperris, secretary and Arthur Branscombe, author of the history of the Washington family. They were greeted by the mayor and other officials of the municipality in their official robes, after which the school children, who had been gathered for the occasion, sang the national anthems of both the United States and Great Britain.

Following this pretty greeting, the party proceeded in motor cars to the Manor where, at the ancient doorway, the Duke of Teck handed the keys to Ambassador Page. The party then went to the ancient church where Washington's ancestors are buried.

At Queen Eleanor's Cross, erected by Edward I. and which now stands in a portion of the city of Northampton, the spot where the emigrating Washingtons took leave of the family, the centenary party was received by the mayor and local officials of Northampton, also in robes. A reception and luncheon followed in the guild hall.

The mayor and committee members then visited the country seat of Earl Selsby, whose ancestors were related to the Washingtons, and viewed other Washingtonian shrines.

Moving pictures were taken of all the ceremonies and these will be exhibited throughout the United States. It is expected that they will be first shown before President Wilson in the White House at Washington.
