MARCONI TELLS HIS LIFE STORY IN COURT

Had Germ. of Wireless Idea When a Boy and Worked to Develop It.

Giuglielmo Marconi, testifying yesterday in New York in rebuttal in the injunction and damage suit brought by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America against the National Electric Signaling Company, briefly sketched the remarkable career that made wireless telegraphy and the name Marconi practically synonymous. It was the life story of a man who, as an Italian lad who had expanded the germ of an idea to worldwide proportions. From a mere toy that spluttered feebly across the length of a dining room table he had laboriously evolved the miracle worker of the present day which sends its message flying across 6,000 miles.

The idea was not entirely new, he said, but he insisted that the experiments covered by his patents had made wireless practicable, had lifted it out of the class of scientific freaks to a place among the commercial utilities that are now almost indispensable.

He denied that he had taken his best ideas from either Popoff or Herz.

INVENTOR A GOOD WITNESS. Marconi made a good witness. He was as shrewd in answering the questions of the patent lawyers as he was in weighing and framing his replies. He is a man of medium height and build, dark of coloring, and the slight nervousness he manifested in the courtroom was characteristic rather than the result of the swiftly shifting and sharp attacks he was subjected to in cross-examination.

At one time he was accused of taking his idea of grounding wires from the German scientist Popoff, this allegation being based on the fact that newspaper reports at the time patents were pending contained no reference to this vital improvement in apparatus. The lawyers for the defense took this to mean that the idea of grounding came to him after he had applied for patents. Popoff suggested such an improvement just about that time.

"Certainly not," Marconi replied. "Do you think I would be fool enough to give away one of my very best ideas before I had patented it?" Marconi is 38 years old, although his appearance would indicate that he is more than eleven years had elapsed since he came over, a mere boy in appearance and enthusiasm, to demonstrate his practicality of his apparatus to the government and the public in this country. His mustache is gone, but seriousness has taken its place. He seems to have aged even more than the passing of time would warrant. Care has multiplied prodigiously for the young man (then less than 20), who in 1894 read of the experiments of Hertz, the German wireless inventor, and was fired to new experiments with the apparatus he had toyed with as a schoolboy.

EXPERIMENTER FROM BOYHOOD. Most of the earlier experiments were made on his father's country estate in Italy, which Marconi described as two and one-half miles long and half a mile wide. He had been interested in physics and electricity from boyhood, and testified, and naturally paid most attention to studies bearing upon the subject. His education along these lines had not been exhaustive, however, except in so far as he taught himself, and it is to this self-teaching that he owes his title of electrical engineer. From the time he was 20 he stuck persistently to the study and practical application of wireless, though frequently discouraged, and finally stumped for time.

It was not until he had elevated his conductors and grounded his connections that he was able to send over a third of a mile. After that it was an almost uninterrupted march to fame and fortune extending from the English post office experiments in 1897 down to the present day. The British navy was the first to take it up; then the Italian navy. The American navy has a system of its own which will be put out of business, the defendant

How to be Beautiful

Secrets of Health and Beauty by Claire Ainsworth

NOTE—If the reader does not find the information wanted in the questions answered below, just address a letter to Miss Claire Ainsworth, 46 Parkside Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope, and she will gladly advise on health and beauty problems.

"The use of a good rice powder or even talcum after the foregoing is not objectionable, but at least once a day. These begin at once to use 3-grain hypo-nuclease tablets which are sold by druggists in sealed packages and prescribed for anemia and abnormal thinness. Also take daily massage with medicated venosol."

Mina R. asks: "Can you advise a reliable hair tonic? I have used various ones, but with little benefit as I am losing my hair fast."

Answer: "To beautify the hair, tone up the scalp, overcome falling hair and promote the growth of it, I have prepared a hair tonic made of natural and others that tonics composed mainly of alcohol will not do; but a simple preparation made at home by mixing one-half ounce concentrated hairward powder with a pint of pure water is the ideal treatment. Well-stocked drug stores have the hairward powder in sealed vials."

A Fat Woman asks: "Can one safely take medicine to reduce superfluous flesh? If so, what do you advise?"

Answer: "The most reliable and safest anti-fat medicine that I know of is five-grain phy-thy-in tablets, prescribed by physicians and sold by most pharmacies in sealed tubes with full directions for self-administration."

Mrs. D. C. asks: "Can you give me a remedy for superfluous hair on my cheek? Something that will not mark or irritate?"

Answer: "Such a flaw mars your face, and I am glad to be able to advise a perfect depilatory. Get a sealed vial of suvol powder and use according to directions and instantly your distress will cease. The hair may return, but repeat the treatment and ultimately the root should be destroyed."

James B. asks: "I am sorely afflicted with itching scalp and a very bad case of dandruff which refuses to yield to ordinary hair tonics. Please tell me what will really cure?"

Answer: "There are several good treatments for dandruff but most of them are expensive and require the services of an expert. The most prompt, efficient and inexpensive treatment is the application of plain yellow mineral, which is sold by druggists in four-ounce jars, with directions for home use. This was originated by a professional learned in the knowledge of hair and scalp and is widely used by the proprietors of hair dressing parlors."

Miss Dorothy asks: "I am so thin and bloodless that I am almost transparent, and I want so much to increase my weight about 20 pounds. What can I do?"

Answer: "I advise a diet of one or two raw eggs well beaten and mixed with a pint of rich milk suitably flavored, at least once a day. Then begin at once to use 3-grain hypo-nuclease tablets which are sold by druggists in sealed packages and prescribed for anemia and abnormal thinness. Also take daily massage with medicated venosol."

Amelia J. asks: "Can one obtain a ready prepared fluid which will keep stubborn, stringy hair in wave and curl, without injury and irritable?"

Answer: "There is only one reliable preparation of this nature that I know of and it is sold by drug and toilet stores as gloriole wavelene. It is sensibly applied and you can avoid the probably injurious curling iron. Many find that a permanent wave in the hair is soon established even in damp climate. Once used, you will never be without it."

Mrs. B. W. C. asks: "How can I fill the hollows in my neck and develop a firm bust? I have never tried anything but a diet."

Answer: "By beginning a massage with nutrient oil or cream called medicated venosol, sold in sealed tubes with explicit directions for home use. An actress friend informs me it is the only thing which proved wholly satisfactory after trying innumerable methods. If your whole body is too thin take 3-grain hypo-nuclease tablets."

Madeline asks: "Do you believe in the use of 'dry shampoo' for the hair? Is it beneficial? If so what is best to use?"

Answer: "A dry shampoo is very beneficial especially if one's hair is inclined to be oily and dust-catching. The powder should be antiseptic and non-injurious to the scalp. This formula makes an exquisite cleanser and makes the hair and life to the hair, if used once a week."

"Obtain separately 4 ounces of powdered orris root and 2 ounces of vilans powder. Mix thoroughly and use one or two tablespoonfuls, sprinkled through the hair, by kneading with the fingers, afterwards removing all trace by a thorough combing and brushing."

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

Wet tea leaves will drive away roaches. Hot vinegar will remove paint stains from glass. Cold water will soothe the pain of any sudden inflammation of the eye. The canary fancier should know that the bird's love nectarium blooms.

Old pieces of velvet or put over the brooms are excellent for cleaning the walls. The tongs which come with candy are very useful to pluck the stems from watermelons.

Some ammonia in the water in which flannels are washed will take all the roughness off. Rice may be substituted for macaroni with cheese. It is very good served with tomato sauce. Kerosene, quickly applied, is a good remedy for burns, and will prevent blisters from arising.

Dried orange peel if allowed to smoulder on a piece of live coal will kill any bad odor in the house. Mix a little common baking soda with soft water on the bottom shelf. This prevents things from burning.

To take machine grease out of clothing add a little ammonia and soap to cold water and apply this to the fabric. Chicken salad served in green pepper shells is very attractive, and the pepper gives the salad an excellent flavor.

The careful laundress always keeps a brush on hand with which she brushes out the fringe on towels and boluses. A lump of soda, dissolved in a little hot water and added to the blue water will prevent the bluing from setting in the clothes.

When baking potatoes it is a good plan to allow them to stand in hot water for a few minutes. They require much less baking. If soil is accidentally dropped on the carpet cover it quickly with salt, and both water and salt swept up without soiling the carpet.

Paint which has become scratched with matches can be restored by first rubbing with lemon acid and then washing with soap and water. After this are washed and dried they should be placed near the fire for a few minutes before putting them away. This prevents rusting.

One ounce of oil of sasparilla will drive away red ants if it is painted around the openings of sugar bowls, cake plates, refrigerators, etc. After blankets have been washed and dried thoroughly they should be well beaten with a carpet beater. This will make them light and soft.

When frying oysters always add a little baking powder to the flour in which they are rolled. This increases the size of the oysters very much. When making croquettes of left-over meat it is much better to boil the meat until it is very tender. The croquettes will be much more palatable.

Sprinkle a few drops of camphor about the sick room. It makes an excellent disinfectant and the room will have a pleasant and refreshing odor.

A fine piece of black stocking plaster will mend the hole in an umbrella. Soak it soft and place it carefully on the inside under the hole, and allow it to dry.

To clean doormats put the mat into a bath of soapy water and scrub with a hard scrubbing brush. Then rinse well in cold water, standing it up to dry.

When washing black combs, brushes and trays try rubbing a little olive oil into them after washing them. This will prevent their turning gray and streaked.

Soapy water and some fine sand is an excellent thing for cleaning decanters. Shake the decanter until the glass is clean, then rinse with fresh water, then with alcohol.

To remove the dust from a black straw hat use a tablespoonful of salt to a quart of water. Use a small scrubbing brush and rinse the hat by dipping it into clear water.

When laying matting you will find it much easier to lay into corners if wet thoroughly with a brush dipped into a pail of water to which a cupful of salt has been added.

Water spilled on the bed when some one is ill may be quickly dried by filling a hot-water bottle full of boiling
