

Waterbury Democrat.

VOL XIII NO 280.

WATERBURY, CONN. WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1900.

PRICE TWO CENTS.

KENNEDY, LOWE AND GUILFOILE

Elected By Democrats Yesterday—Bronson Also Got Majority Here—Big Vote and Quiet Election—Notes.

The election returns contain little consolation for the democrats and in consequence they are not in the very best kind of spirits to-day, though, to be sure, none of them has been reported missing or charged with threatening to wreak vengeance upon his neighbors for the whipping they gave Bryan and nearly all the other democrats yesterday. It was a great day and the battle, though apparently somewhat lopsided, was one of the hottest in the history of the country, and although the democrats got the worst of it, still it cannot be called an inglorious defeat, for every inch of ground was disputed and it took the victors all their time to keep ahead. The result must be decidedly satisfactory to the trusts and combines and also to the laboring classes, the former being given a renewal of their right to rob and plunder at will and the latter satisfied that they will have full dinner pails for four years more. This, in the opinion of the republican campaign orators, was the only thing the working people cared anything about and they kept it under their noses since the campaign opened and while some people might regard it in the light of an insult to say that the masses have no higher aspirations in life than that which pertains to their stomachs, the republicans decided to take their chances with it as a national issue and it turned out to be a drawing card. Well, bring on the work, the high wages, the full dinner pails and all the other good things our friends all have been promising us the past few weeks in case they should receive a new lease of power and no doubt many will soon forget all about this "carnal war" in which so many people were slaughtered who dared to stand up for what they believed to be for the best interest of the country in spite of the influence the silver-tongued orators and the work of the fellows who got in their work through the agency of men acting for the trusts and combines and capitalists in this country and Europe.

It was reported that Bryan would carry Waterbury and he would, had it not been for an element of so-called democrats who thought themselves wiser than their party and who, while proclaiming themselves democrats, talked, worked and voted for McKinley or for the candidate of some other party which meant about the same as a vote for the present administration. Considering the way things went on the state and national tickets it is a wonder that the democrats got anything out of it, and the election of William Kennedy, Judge Lowe and Francis P. Guilfoile is due largely to the extreme popularity of the men, for where such a landslide occurred it is no guesswork to state that the democrats who won 3333 have commanded not only the confidence of their own party but also that of the opposition as well.

But what's the use talking about the battle now, anyway, the water question is of more importance at present. Let the figures tell the story. Here they are:

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.
 Democrat—Francis P. Brett, Michael Stone, Clooney, Francis P. Guilfoile, Thomas F. Lawlor, Robert A. Lowe, J. Pheasant, Edward B. Heffey, Jr., James E. Thomas.

Attorney Marsh was at his office in the superior court room before 9 o'clock this morning looking pretty good for a defeated candidate.

Who were the members of the Waterbury club who wished to nominate Senator-elect William Kennedy? Echo answers that George White and Judge Cowell were not opposed to the movement.

Mr. Durant has gone to Old Point Comfort to rest a few days, and for the comfort he so sadly needs. Yesterday toward the close of the day's contest he was far from looking a well man.

Ah, but isn't Attorney Guilfoile a sprinter? How he did crawl over Brother Peasley's head and pursued Mr. Lilley with such speed that many think if the battle had lasted a little longer he would have outstripped him, too.

The moment Janitor McGraw put his head inside the door of his jurisdiction, the court house building, this morning, he said: "Well, what do you think of the situation now?" For the past two months the janitor has been asking this question night, noon and morning of the court attaches, and it is still a vigorous question with him.

Chris Dunphy, of the third ward, is one of the very happy men over the great showing made by his party yesterday. Mr. Dunphy was principally interested in getting up the outdoor meeting of last Friday night, which proved so successful. The platform from which the speeches were delivered was decorated by him.

The whiskey that was captured by the police yesterday in a vacant tenement on Spring street was the property of one of the republican candidates. Last evening some men called at the police station, saying they needed it for a celebration they were getting up for Mr. Durant. The liquor was denied them on the grounds that it would do less harm in the custody of the police.

The electors of the fifth district meant what they said to William Kennedy Monday night when they shouted to him from the street that they would stand by him regardless of the heat that they were committed to Durant. The fifth district men did nobly. Long may they wave. All the pasters Harry Durant received there did not amount to more than $5, and this was cut down by 56 republican pastors for Kennedy.

Some democratic wag, evidently suffering bitterly from the results of yesterday's battle, exhibited his feelings in a significant manner on North Main street this morning. He hung a milk pail on a telegraph pole, labelling it with this inscription: "Four years more of the full dinner pail," and inside the pail he placed a bladder, signifying that the argument furnished through the dinner pail is still all water.

"I expect to hear from Mr. Kennedy in the senate," said one of Waterbury's oldest and most respected democrats to a reporter of this paper yesterday. "The old time democrat of Naugatuck kind Waterbury like him as a neighbor and as a man and a person, who commands the confidence and respect of those who are near him cannot be very bad or they would find it hard and expose him. Next to Mr. Bronson, Mr. Kennedy was my choice of the ticket, though, of course I voted for every man on it."

The counting in the fourth ward went along without a hitch until the vote of the republican ticket of the peace was being counted. Then Colonel Doherty, one of the counters, after calling out the name of Attorney Bronson, followed it up with a volley of his words closing thus, "Did I vote for him? The fact that he unwillingly voted for the republican ticket of the peace in a national election, seemed to worry the colonel a good deal. However, he made a lot of fun for his fellow counters.

Samuel L. Bronson will not be the next governor of Connecticut, but that is something the people of this town cannot be held responsible for. When Mr. Bronson spoke here he said that when he should look over the returns he would be able to tell what it was worth to have been born in Waterbury. All right, Mr. Bronson. Look at them and satisfy yourself that we sent you out of the city of your birth on horseback and if the democrats in other towns allowed you to be displaced by McLean that was a matter we had nothing to do with.

One of the amusing features of the evening, exciting as it was, was the portly form of John E. Wells standing near Cone's corner with Old Glory wrapped around him. An admiring crowd of republicans stood around him but Wells was looking over them. His eyes were in quest of a friend whom he was to carry home on his back as the result of a wager. Wells was so confident that McKinley would win that he would wager to take his friend to Watertown on his back. The wager will be carried out some evening this week.

If there is a man in Waterbury who feels like getting out of the republican camp, that man is Attorney F. M. Peasley. He was whipped by his own party, and on a day, too, when one would think that the people would not stop to waste time getting square with an enemy. Of course, he was pitted against an extremely popular man, Attorney Guilfoile, but even so, the result of the other elections shows that the man who nominated him did not want to see him elected. We are not sorry that Mr. Peasley didn't get there, still we are free to state that, so far as we know, he is a tolerably good fellow and there appears no reason why the party he is associated with should make a fool ball of him.

M'KINLEY 284, BRYAN 139

Latest Returns Make Election of McKinley Certain.

Twenty-Four Doubtful Votes—If Given to Bryan, It Would Only Make His Total 163—Four Years Ago McKinley Had 271 and Bryan 176.

New York, Nov. 7.—The following is the latest report and it is sent out as official as to the number of electoral votes received by each candidate for president. McKinley wins the following states: California 9, Connecticut 6, Delaware 3, Illinois 24, Indiana 15, Iowa 13, Kansas 10, Maine 6, Maryland 7, Massachusetts 13, Michigan 14, Minnesota 9, New Hampshire 4, New Jersey 10, New York 36, North Dakota 4, Utah 3, Vermont 4, Washington 4, West Virginia 6, Wisconsin 12, Wyoming 3. Total 284. For Bryan: Alabama 11, Arkansas 8, Colorado 4, Florida 4, Georgia 12, Louisiana 8, Mississippi 9, Missouri 17, Montana 3, Nevada 3, North Carolina 11, South Carolina 9, Tennessee 12, Texas 15, Virginia 12. Total 139. In doubt, Idaho 3, Kentucky 13, Nebraska 8. Total 24.

The electoral vote four years ago was: McKinley 271 and Bryan 176, thus it will be seen that even if Bryan gets the doubtful states he will fall below his vote of four years ago.

Canton, O., Nov. 7.—President McKinley was the recipient of congratulatory telegrams by the thousands. They came from all quarters, many being cablegrams from the ambassadors and ministers of the United States abroad, all the members of the cabinet. The president took an early occasion to answer the message of Governor Roosevelt. It was as follows: "I heartily appreciate your kind expression and congratulate you upon concluding in health one of the most memorable campaigns in our political history. (Signed) William McKinley." At 1:30 the president and party left on the Pennsylvania road for Washington.

New York, Nov. 7.—Ex-Governor Stone, at the democratic headquarters today, gave out the following statement: "The battle is over and the democratic party of the country accepts the result without a complaint, as in duty bound. It signifies but little now to analyze the influences or to discuss the causes that brought about such a result."

Oyster Bay, Nov. 7.—Governor Roosevelt this morning made this comment on the republican victory: "I deeply rejoice over the result. President McKinley had to face the most serious and complicated problems that have ever been faced by any president since Lincoln, and by any president since Lincoln. I do not see how there could have been any question of the way in which he has faced and solved each of them."

New York, Nov. 7.—Richard Croker this morning had this to say: "I am very much surprised and disappointed at the way the election turned out. I did expect that Mr. Bryan would be elected president of the United States. I believe that 16 to 1 had a good deal to do with the vote against Mr. Bryan in this state."

Lincoln, Nov. 7.—William J. Bryan will not make any statement as to the result of the election until later. He made the announcement this morning that he had received no new information and desired to have as complete returns as were possible before announcing any conclusion. No doubt as to the reports of defeat was expressed and evidently in all ways except by word of mouth he concedes all the republican claims. Mr. Bryan said, "I shall make no attempt to answer the letters sent me for the present but will postpone that duty until later. I am not exhausted but have had plenty to do for several months and will take it easy for a time."

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—The wife of a prominent business man, who resides on Diamond street, is joyously exhibiting to her friends her wedding ring, which was given to her in 1878, was lost in 1882 and recovered last week. At the time the couple were married, in 1878, they started housekeeping at 1631 Dickinson street. While planting a flower garden in the back yard in 1882 the ring was lost. It was a plain gold band with the inscription inside, "J. A. J. to A. S. J. 1878." Search was made for the ring, but without avail. In the meantime the couple prospered and moved to more pretentious dwelling on Diamond street. During these years the yard at 1631 Dickinson street had been sodded and resodded, then it was bricked, and finally an asphalt pavement was put down. A couple of weeks ago the present tenant, while planting an ivy vine, removed part of the asphalt, and in digging with her trowel turned up the ring. She knew by the initials whom it belonged to, but while on her way home to return it to the owner she lost it in a restaurant where she stopped to take lunch. It was given to the cashier by a waiter who found it was advertised, and finally found his way back to the delighted owner.—Philadelphia Record.

ARTISTIC LYING.
 A Parisian paper relates the following story of a contest in boasting which, it says, took place between artists of Marseilles. It should be explained that Parisian writers always put their "tail talk" into the mouths of Marseilles people.

"My dear," said one of the artists, "yesterday I painted a pine board in imitation of marble, and did it with such fidelity that when the board was put into a pond of water it sunk like stone."

"Pooh!" said the second, "that is nothing. Yesterday I happened to hang up my thermometer on the back of the frame of my 'View in the Arc de Region,' and the mercury instantly went down to twenty degrees below zero."

"All that is nothing at all," said the third artist. "You know my portrait of the old Marquis of Carmagne? Well, it is so lifelike that it has to be shaved three times a week!"

SUPERIOR COURT

The Case of Hemingway vs Morris in Hands of Jury.

The superior court resumed the hearing of civil business to-day, with the calling of the case of Mrs. Hemingway against William B. Morris and his wife, Jennie F. The plaintiff lives in New Haven and the defendants in Watertown. They had mutual interests in a piece of property in Wolcott and it is alleged, the plaintiff loaned Mrs. Morris $25,000, with which she bought a house on this property on condition that she was to pay back $200 the first year and $500 the
