Some of the Heroes of the Hour of Eastern Gridirons

ASK the gridiron followers who are the men most in the public eye in football in the east and they will be quick with the retort: "Little Harold Weekes, the left half back of Columbia, who has twice scored touchdowns against mighty Yale; Coach Sanford, the old son of Eli who is directing the Columbia team, and whose strategy gave Weekes the opportunity to humiliate Mr. Sanford's alma mater; Coach Percy Haughton, of Cornell, who took his disheartened Ithacans to the Nassau Tigers' field, coached them to use a few plays that the newspapers had said were discarded and treated Princeton to a second humiliation, this time to the tune of 12 to 0."

Individual cases of great gridiron prowess are coexistent with every big game. None will ever care to detract one whit from the magnificent play of Capt. Truxton Hare, the giant guard of the Pennsy team, when, exhausted but not vanquished, the courageous young man fought the crimson team almost single-handed, refusing to acknowledge that the red and blue was beaten by Harvard until the whistle blew for the call of time. His was the greatest individual work of the season, even though the results of his work were diminished by the faultiness of his team's work.

RUSSIA WANTS PEACE.

Her Principal National Scheme is the Development of Her Resources.

The present czar has been something of a puzzle to the world. Much was expected of him by the friends of Russian progress because of his known inclination toward liberalism.

The general peace policy inaugurated by Alexander III. has been emphasized by an attempt to reach a basis of universal peace through the peace congress at The Hague.

NEW INVASION OF INDIA.

American Cigarettes Are Carrying All Before Them in the Orient.

The idea that the native Indian eschews all but his native tobacco, which he takes mostly in the form of cheroots, receives a hard shock from the newly issued official Review of the Trade of India.

It is no longer true that the consumption of imported tobacco is practically confined to the Anglo-Indian population.

Imported cottons have largely superseded the production of the native handloom; imported mineral oil and dyes have superseded the inferior articles produced in the country.
