CIO Council Appeals To Washington To Avert Lay-Offs

New Contracts Urged For Local Industries To Improve Situation

Gradual Reduction in Production Reported in Local Plants; With Drastic Reductions Slated After June 1; Actions Demanded

In an appeal forwarded today to all Connecticut industries in Washington, the CIO International Council of Commerce immediately action by government authorities in providing means of assistance to unemployed former cutbacks cited the following picture for Waterbury's war situation:

Here war contracts will not only save but will create new employment. Many will repeat existing production. The new industry created will provide high labor income and stimulate production for our victorious Army and Navy.

The immediate needs, as already indicated, are a continuation of the current employment plans, or the creation of supplementary industries. The CIO, therefore, requests immediate action by local and national authorities in accordance with these lines.
