

COOLIDGE WON FAME IN STRIKE

Washington—Calvin Coolidge is the first Massachusetts man to hold the office of vice president since Henry Wilson served in the second Grant administration nearly half a century ago. His advent into office adds to the prominence of his state in national government affairs for it is regarded as almost certain that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, will be again chosen as Republican leader in the Senate, and Rep. Frederick H. Gillett as speaker of the House.

Should Mr. Gillett succeed himself, a Massachusetts man will preside over each branch of congress, a most unusual coincidence. More unusual still is the fact that both Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Gillett come from the same Congressional district, Northampton, the home of the vice president being in the same district as Springfield, the home of the speaker. Both men are graduates of Amherst college.

Vice President Coolidge is entering upon his first service in the field of national politics, but for 20 years he has been active in the political service of his state, rising from membership in the council of his city to governor of the commonwealth.

It was his intensive study of affairs of state that first attracted to him the attention of prominent Republican leaders, notably the late Senator W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts. For a number of years they watched the development of his career with a view to directing him into the national political arena. Their opportunity came when the spectacular Boston police strike, during his first term as Governor, attracted nationwide attention.

The crisis which was precipitated by the strike, according to these friends, merely revealed the powers and courage of the man, and they frankly and openly seized the opportunity to press for him claims for the Republican Presidential nomination at Chicago last June. They pointed out that as councillor in his home city and later as city solicitor and mayor, as a member of both branches of the legislature including a term as president of the Senate and then as lieutenant-governor and finally as governor he had been elected with ever-increasing majorities culminating in the vote of almost 70 per cent of the vote at the polls when he was again elected governor by a plurality of 126,000.

Probably the most attractive part of Mr. Coolidge in his home life, ever since his marriage 15 years ago, to Miss Grace Goodhue, of Burlington, Vt., a University of Vermont graduate whom he met as a school teacher in Northampton, he has lived a quiet, modest life, most of the time in the shadow of Smith College in a house which he has rented for $32.50 a month.

"Save, no matter what his salary may be," has always been his motto and he has enjoyed beyond the income earned in public office only meagre returns from his law practice because of pressure of public duties he has been obliged to content to live simply. There are two boys in their early teens, but all do their bit, even to mowing the lawn.

During Mr. Coolidge's official residence at Boston he and Mrs. Coolidge lived in apartments at a hotel, as they will do here in Washington, while the boys have been away at school. In dress, too, Mr. Coolidge has been not extravagant, although always immaculately attired and not given to use of the threadbare, whatever the popular impression to the contrary may be.

His coming to Washington means the presence of a man who, his friends say, personifies the best of American standards, not given much to social life, perhaps, but a thorough student, a hard worker and a clear-headed, solid American.

Some Problems Which Confront New President

Washington.—Here are some of the more important of the problems, international and domestic, facing the Harding Administration:

INTERNATIONAL

Peace with Germany.

Final disposition of the Treaties of Versailles and St. Germaine.

Decision as to the Entry of the United States into an Association of Nations.

International disarmament.

The Japanese-California question.

The Russian Question, including trade with Soviet Russia.

Recognition of Mexico.

Negotiation of new treaties, diplomatic and commercial, with Germany and Austria and with the new nations, Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

Japanese occupation of Siberia.

Treaty with Colombia.

Disposition of the former German cables now held by the Allies.

Recognition of the new Greek government and settlement of the status of the Greek loan.

Loans to allied countries, including funding of the British and other debts to the United States.

The Anglo-French world oil agreement of San Remo.

Cuban relations.

Military occupation of Haiti and Dominican Republic.

Irish question.

Philippines independence.

Self-government for Porto-Rico.

Settlement of claims against Germany grown out of the war.

Settlement of claims against Mexico resulting from revolutions there.

Re-establishment of full diplomatic relations with Turkey.

Disposition of the Anglo-French-American treaty for defense of France.

DOMESTIC

Tax and tariff revision.

Soldier bonus issues.

Panama Canal tolls.

Immigration control.

General Labor policy.

Army and navy policies.

Permanent merchant marine policy.

Reorganization of government departments.

Budget system.

Civil Service reform.

Strengthening of prohibition laws.

Anti-trust law revision.

Disposition of enemy property seized during the war.

General reconstruction legislation—housing, farmer credits, railroad law revision and coal and packer control.

NO "FLU" IN SIGHT.

Washington.—"Don't worry about the 'flu' this winter; it is unlikely to return," the Public Health Service asserts in a bulletin just issued. "Worry about diphtheria; worry enough, anyway, to have you determine by a simple test whether you and your children are immune. If they are not, protect them by the best method of immunization." The report says 5,000 cases of diphtheria were reported in October and more in November.

New First Lady Of Land Knows Meaning of Work

Washington—Florence Kling Harding, the new First Lady of the Land, possesses an unusual degree of pluck and outspokenness. She has ideas of her own on many subjects and she does not hesitate to speak her opinions straight out from the shoulder. Those who work for her count her a kindly and delightful mistress, but they know that any delinquency will call down a reprimand they will not soon forget. On occasions she has been seen shaking a forefinger at her husband—but of course nobody knows what that all is about.

All her life Mrs. Harding has been a determined and tireless worker, not only in the details of her household, but in the broader field of business and community welfare. She comes of fighting blood, her father, Amos Kling, having been a rugged power of the pioneer days of Marion. She was born there, and although in her girlhood her parents attained to moderate means they were not the sort who lean to extravagance.

When she married Mr. Harding in 1891, his newspaper, the Star, was not yet out of the woods financially and she went to work in its business department. She applied herself to advertising and circulation problems with an eye for efficiency all along the line. She watched the original purchases of print paper and materials and she stood at the presses and gave instructions to the newsboys daily before they started on their rounds with the finished product.

It is said of her in Marion that when she became the wife of the struggling young editor she told her friends she expected to make him president some day, and it is known that at some of the most discouraging stages of the pre-convention campaign last year it was she who insisted most vigorously that the fight be continued.

During the strenuous days when thousands were marching to the front porch of the Harding residence on Mt. Vernon avenue, she was the most active figure about her husband's headquarters. She was beside him every time he spoke at home or away; she shook hands with as many men and women as did her and she was in and out of his offices from morning until night, rounding up details and giving him advice on all serious questions before him.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF WAR AGAINST SPIES

Dublin—Another victim of the Sinn Fein's relentless warfare against "spies" was found near Curragh Clough today. He was a farmer who had been taken from his home by a band of armed, masked men and shot to death, upon his breast was pinned the following note:

"A convicted spy. Informers beware."

An unidentified man, aged about 70, was shot to death in the streets at Cork after curfew hours.

Sean O'Brien, a resident of Charleville, was killed by a bomb while running towards his shop.

WATCH CHILDREN'S TEETH.

Washington.—A child's "six-year molars" are not the "last of the first teeth," but the first of the last and once gone, cannot be replaced, a public health bulletin declares. Poor health goes hand in hand with poor chewing, it adds, urging parents to look after children's chawers in time.
