SCOTCH GRANITE MONUMENTS, GRANITE & MARBLE WORKS, GRANITE & MARBLE WORKS, GRANITE & MARBLE WORKS. REPRESENTED BY JOHN J. NORTHRUP FOR NEWTOWN AND VICINITY.

A CARD FROM A. G. BAKER.

Our furniture business in Hawleyville is now so well known far and near that we feel that we may safely for a time at least cut down our advertising expenses. An "ad" to be of value should be changed every week. It is a rule of mine that I never have a man say the other day that that furniture man at Hawleyville who advertises so much must be a fool. (I never what big game one runs on to sometimes when he goes out with out a gun.) Another more charitable friend remarked to me confidentially in an off hand way that writing "ads" out of business hours is liable to lead to softening of the brain, and you he didn't say we had got it, and he looked a way over into the next county, when he said it, but, well we are not slow to take a hint if it is a blind one. It would be perfect, if we could get it, and have it get read deeply seated before we know it or before we had time to vacillate so we are going to stop right off now, and up our advertising columns for a while, pocket the money that would otherwise go into the coffers of these grasping newspaper monopolists, eat brain rendering food and attend strictly to business. Now for Heaven's sake don't tell everybody what you think, just remember how sensitive we are to adverse criticism and tell them that we are simply cutting and playing Debs with the newspapers for a while, don't tell them we are tired or waiting for anything to happen, be compassionate, be just, be conciliatory, be charitable, be liberal minded one with another and last of all BE SURE AND COME TO HAWLEYVILLE before you buy your furniture. Please commit this last sentence to memory and then pin it in your hat.

Affairs About Town.

THE BEE BUZZ.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE BEE.]

Rights and duties in the nature of the case presuppose laws and government of some kind; and natural laws are the foundation of social regulations such as constitute government.

If there was but one man on the earth there would be laws of nature and the need of self-government. If there were but two persons on the earth and they were to live together there would be need that they should agree as to how they were to act toward each other.

And so when we come to society in general we see that there must be rules to regulate the interests which belong to men in the various relations of life.

Now what is the true basis of government? The laws of nature, physical, social and moral. It must be best in any case for a man to live in harmony with the laws of his own being.

So sure as man was created it was meant that he should live according to certain principles and plans of the Creator. In other words all good government is of God, for all good laws are God's laws. Therefore the sum of all law and government is to love God with all the power of life and one's neighbor as one's self. This is the universal law of nature in the largest sense.

Out of this universal law of our created nature grow certain inalienable rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

The individual is the first unit. Personal freedom is the chief thing. The standard of life is the life of the individual. But the individual was not created to live alone, and so the perfection and freedom of the individual must be found in society. The individual is most perfect as a member of the most perfect organization. Laws and government are simply the rules and regulations by which society adjusts the relations and interests of individuals so as to preserve harmony in the whole.

All government is in its last analysis self-government, or obedience to the laws of God. But if one does not govern himself by being obedient, then he becomes subject to that government which is constituted by those who are obedient, and who for the sake of the common good force him to conform to the law without which there can be no freedom for any. There is always freedom to do right under the law. There cannot be freedom to do wrong, else there is no society because there is no government.—[O. O. Wright.]

BRAKEMAN MOORE'S PREDICAMENT.

A funny incident occurred at Brookfield Junction, last Saturday. Brakeman Moore, on Conductor Smith's train, went into the little switch house to turn the switch, and after resetting it attempted to come out, but found that the door was "out of kilter," and that he could not get out but was a prisoner. He signalled to his comrades his distress and they tried to push the door open but could not. It was finally decided to burst in the door when some one suggested removing the bolt from the iron bar which controlled the door, this was done and the door opened and let the prisoner out after his hot wait in the little switch house.

The Congregational church pulpit was supplied on Sunday by Rev. Mr. Jones of the Steepney Baptist church. He gave a forcible discourse from the text, "I was left." He emphasized the thought that each person was spared by God's mercy, and that it was the duty of each one to do the work that lies near at hand. He gave the message to the converted, bidding them to remember that they were spared by the grace of God, and should early seek Christ and Him crucified.
