THE DIAMOND The National League Will Use But Seven Umpires Next Season. Chicago, Nov 20.—There will be seven umpires in the National league next season, President Pulliam having passed up his plans to have two officials for each game because of the scarcity of reliable men. The American league will have the double umpire system in 1909, and President Ban Johnson will announce soon the names of the men who will compose his staff. The latest umpire signed by the National league is S. P. Cusack, who has had experience in the American association and Eastern league. Cusack is a Chicagoan and was highly recommended to Pulliam by managers and players who live in that city. Last season the National leaguers had six umpires, so the engagement of Cusack gives them one more stone does not resign or get the hook. The first thing Pulliam will do when he goes back to New York will be to request Johnstone to affirm or deny the report that he was displeased with Pulliam because he had not been selected to umpire the two-cent world's series. If Johnstone says he did not entertain ill feelings because his name was left off of the world's series list of umpires and was misquoted, he may get another trial from Pulliam. Pulliam would like to have two men act as arbiters in each game, but scarcity of good material caused him to pass up his ideas of having the double umpire system. Mr Pulliam also has another view about the wisdom of assigning two men to each contest. He thinks that with two umpires for every game some of them would go stale for lack of exercise. Pulliam's plan for his umpires next year includes a scheme to work one man alone whenever it is necessary for him to ginger up a man. Emmle, Rigler, Cusack and Johnstone (if retired) will generally be field umpires, and in the future the scheme of switching the men from behind the bat to the bases will not be followed. The man with the keenest eyesight will call balls and strikes. Emmle thus probably being called for field duty all year. Lanigan, the umpire from the New England league is not likely to be on the National league staff. He is slow in covering plays, and Pulliam does not want a referee of this kind. Since Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox offered $10,000 cash to the Boston Americans for catcher Lou Criger Manager Lake of the Hub team has concluded to make the Windy city team. "Lake will sell Criger for $10,000 providing the Sox will trade Pitcher Smith even up for Cy Young. The Boston club already has three clever young catchers in Madden, Donahue and Carrigan, so that Lake thinks that he can spare Criger. But before Criger is sold it is probable that Lake will receive a strong protest from the veteran pitcher Cy Young, who has been paired with Criger for a dozen years and thinks that the latter's services are indispensable.

THE GRIDIRON Yale Has Another Star Hurt and There is Gloom Around the Campus. New Haven, Nov 20.—In the final hard practice of the year at Yale field yesterday John R. Kilpatrick, Yale's star end was so badly injured that he had to be carried from the field and Yale is without any end who can take a forward pass or an inside kick. Kilpatrick was not to be used in the scrimmage for the coaches were afraid of injuring him, but in the signal practice before the scrimmage he was put in at left end while Captain Burch was at right. He jumped in the air to pull down a high forward pass and when he came down he fell on his knee, which was injured several weeks ago. The knee pan dropped down and Kilpatrick was unable to rise. Roraback and Foster Sanford took him on their shoulders to a carriage and he was taken to the Yale infirmary. As a result Logan and Captain Burch will start the game against Harvard. Haines will be first substitute. The students yesterday afternoon marched to the field and the procession arrived just as Kilpatrick was being carried out. This was not very encouraging and he cheering was without life. The coaches and the team were also affected by the injury, and it was decided not to have a scrimmage lest some of the other men should be hurt. In a desperate effort to relieve the situation the Yale ticket department decided last night to issue a very small number of aisle tickets for the Harvard-Yale football game. This will allow the holder to sit on the step of a section aisle. This move will relieve only some of the very worst cases on the hands of the department, and will still leave thousands of applicants unable to get into the grounds. The manager of the ticket department said last night that the number of seats available to meet the regular undergraduates and graduate Yale demands was approximately 19,000. The number of seats called for by early Yale applications, those received on or before November 7, was 27,000. All late applications were refused and the total money thus far sent back is about $8,000. New Haven city officials this year will not get tickets to the game as heretofore. Manager Thomson last night said he regretted that he had to treat the New Haveners in this way, but that the Yale applications had to be taken care of first. A tremendous impetus has been given to the movement for a new stand, which probably means a new field, by the deplorable insufficiency of the accommodations for the present contest. Yale worked the waiting game against Princeton with success both this year and last, wearing the other side down and then striking hard and effectively when the time came. Harvard's plan against Dartmouth was much the same and with the same reserve strength. Indeed, in her last three games Harvard has displayed tactics of that sort. The question then arises, will each try it on the other to-morrow? If so there is likely to be a scoreless first half and with some fierce attacking in the second. However, it is a sure thing that if either team can slip a score across in the early part of the game it will not pass up the opportunity, and the moral effect of a score first in a game of this sort is not to be sneezed at. Yale teams fight like sin when the game is going against them, but that doesn't always mean a victory, especially when the other side fights like sin too. The Harvard team has shown good fighting stuff all season and reports from Cambridge say the men know football individually, that they are in condition to play hard from the start and that there is a machine like precision in their formations which make them additionally effective. How hard put to it they must have been to win their games is something that is known only to those on the inside, but with reserve to back what they have shown they are a team that may roll up a big score if they get going early. Yale's play hasn't been as comprehensive as Harvard's, but at West Point and Princeton they were powerful, even if belated streaks of sustained team play. With almost the same eleven men composing the varsity team all season, Harvard has just that much advantage over Yale, who on account of injuries had to make many changes. These things and the money that is on hand to back Harvard would seem to make the crimson a logical favorite.

THE GRIDIRON (Continued) Since 1884 Harvard and Williams have played 23 games, not meeting in 1902 and 1903. Williams has won 14 games, Amherst seven games, and there have been two ties. The Michigan-Syracuse game at Syracuse, Saturday, closes the season for Yale's eleven. In spite of the defeat by Pennsylvania the westerners are fairly confident of winning. The football situation as regards Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Dartmouth, could not have been arranged in a more satisfactory manner than the outcome of the games last week left it, as far as furnishing a climax in the last contest of the year at New Haven. SIX DAY RACE Eleven Teams in Long Grind at Boston Hit Up a Terrific Pace Toward Closing Day. Boston, Nov 20.—At breakneck speed eleven speedy pairs of riders were last night breaking records for six day bicycle racing at the Park Square coliseum. Between 8 and 9 o'clock 25 miles and 2 laps were covered by the riders, and still the pace continues hot. Devonoitch and Halligan last night made up one of the two laps which would again draw them up with the leaders, but were doomed to disappointment, as they were forced by the gruelling grind to lose it again. At 9 p. m. the score stood: M. L. Clark and Fogler..... 867 2 MacFarland and Moran..... 867 2 Root and Collins..... 867 2 Lawson and Anderson..... 867 2 Hollister and De Mara..... 867 2 Bardgett and Hill..... 867 2 Mitten and Logan..... 867 2 Krebs and Rupprecht..... 867 2 Vannoni and Williams..... 867 2 McKay and Drobek..... 867 2 Devonoitch and Halligan..... 867 2 Such a swift pace was maintained in the first hour yesterday that all records were broken. All the eleven riders covered 25 miles, which smashes the figures for the hour. Nothing approaching a steal has yet developed. So closely are the riders watching one another that the slightest move up of any man has the others on edge in an instant. None of the old tricks will work this year, and the clever riders will have to spring something new if they want to gain a lap on their rivals. Walker and Palmer, the Australian team, have been forced to withdraw, the former being unable to eat any solid food on account of the cuts on his mouth received in one of the spills. Vannoni and several other riders who were not believed to be extra strong at the start, are showing up wonderfully well. Hill, Drobek and McKay, the ex-amateurs, are proving a surprise. Hill is exceptionally fast, and it looks as if he and his partner, Walter Bardgett, would weather any storms in the lap stealing line. Elmer Collins has proved to be a high grade six day rider and no matter how quick the jump is or how long the sprint lasts, he is there in good shape. Pat Logan and his little partner, Mitten, are getting stronger every hour, and Pat is confident of getting a good slice of the money. Walter Rutt and John Stol, who composed the German-Holland team which captured the first honors at last year's six day cycle race at Madison Square garden, have sent in their entries for this year's grind, December 6 to 12. Both Rutt and Stol have been riding in great form during the past season on the European cycle tracks. Rutt kept pretty much in France, but Stol made a tour of the different courses throughout Europe. If possible this team is in even better shape for the day and night week long grind at the garden than it was last year, and with Stol's famous jumping abilities and Rutt's famous jump they will certainly be the danger factor in the race. This team, in conjunction with the other European riders who will come over for the event, will sail from France in a week or ten days.

DORANDO IN TRAINING. Old Time Runners Watch Italian in Ten Mile Run. Dorando Pietri, the little Italian who is here from Carpi, Italy, to race with Johnny Hayes at Madison Square Garden Thanksgiving eve, can run all day. Such good judges as Harry Tuttle and Peter Hegleman, the old time six day champion, saw Dorando in his first work-out at Columbia university. The little Italian ran ten miles at an hour gait, and at the end was not in the last tired. He perspired rather freely, but showed no trace of being winded. His style impressed Hegleman. "He is a good, strong runner, and looks as if he could travel any distance," said the old timer. He has an easy going, tireless stride, and runs with his arms well extended from his body. The last two laps of the ten miles he covered like a hundred yard man. After this, his first trial in this country, Dorando expressed himself as being pleased with the indoor run. Up to yesterday he had never run on an indoor track in his life. He walked all the way from Columbia university down to his hotel, and seemed to enjoy the sights en route. He will work three days at Columbia, and do the next three days on the roads in the Bronx. He says inside of a week he will be ready to run the race of his life.

THE PUGILISTS No One in Sight Yet Fit to Tackle Nelson—The Freckled One Still Lives. The six round glove fight between Packey McFarland and Tommy Murphy in Philadelphia on Wednesday night showed conclusively, in the opinion of competent ring followers, that neither man has any license to challenge Battling Nelson for the lightweight championship. McFarland had a slight advantage over Murphy, but the latter finished strong. That both men cannot hit with power enough to warrant the statement that they are of championship calibre cannot be denied. McFarland has a good left hand and is a fast, scientific boxer, but he cannot walk with the right hand enough to score a knockout. In looking back over former great lightweights who have shown real class it cannot be said that either McFarland or Murphy rate equally with Joe Gans, Kid Lavigne, Frank Erne or Jack McAuliffe, all of whom at different times held the title. Murphy is a showy boxer; but that is about all. If he should meet McFarland in a long mill the opinion is general that he would be put away, but that does not mean that McFarland is a world beater, for if he had been one he could have stopped Murphy in the early rounds of Wednesday's battle when he had the famous boy in trouble. A pugilist without a knockout punch never won a championship. Nelson has repeatedly declared that McFarland is not in his class and many sporting men said yesterday that the present lightweight champion has a correct line on the Chicago fighter's ability. The conditions governing the Papke-Ketchel middleweight championship fight, which will be decided Thanksgiving day in Frisco, call for twenty rounds at 158 pounds, the men to weigh in at 11:30 a. m., or about three hours before entering the ring. The way the money will be cut up has not been made public. At present the betting is 10 to 7 on Papke, with some takers, but it is believed that the odds will by then be 2 to 1 before the day of the fight. Both men are doing much road work and their handlers say they will be in splendid shape when the bell rings. As Papke beat Ketchel to a standstill the last time they met he has the Indian sign on his rugged antagonist, and the Indian sign in pugilism has always been a factor in deciding ring contests. That is why Papke is regarded as practically a sure winner. After being knocked out by Larry Temple in Boston the other night, Joe Walcott, now a back number, went to Easton, Pa. where Jack Robinson, a Chicago welterweight, treating him to another sound beating. Walcott is but a shadow of his former self, but he is fighting still because he needs the money. Freddie Welsh, the English boxer, is at present a 10 to 8 favorite for his fifteen round battle with Featherweight Champion Attell, which will be decided at Los Angeles next Wednesday night. This is said to be due to the fact that Attell will go out of his class to meet Welsh at 130 pounds. Not so very long ago rumor had it that Bob Fitzsimmons, of the sorrel top and freckled visage, once the greatest heavyweight fighter in the world, was posing as a model for some prominent sculptor. Undoubtedly Bob would make a fine model for a statue of Truth, not because he has been crushed to earth, so often, but on account of his ability to "rise again." Fitz's latest is that he is going to Europe to fight as many of the heavyweight fighters as can be herded together for the slaughter. Bob has finished his theatrical engagements in Jersey and now his home in Dunellen, N. J., is the scene of busy preparation for the trip across the ocean which "Ruby Rotor" intends to make on board the steamship Celtic, which sails to-morrow. The European trip will be the result of a proposition made by Fitzsimmons some time ago by the managers of the National Sporting club of London, in which they offered to guarantee the ex-champion $25,000 to fight four battles at that club, two of them to be with Gunner Moli and Jim Roche. Between packs yesterday Bob declared that he is good enough yet to beat all of the "easy money-getters" in England, and after he gets through with them he'll settle down and conduct a "mammoth athletic retreat" for broken down business men. In conjunction with the retreat will be a physical culture academy. A clean knockout by Jim McCullough, the bantamweight, of Belfast, Ireland, Wednesday night, over Pinky Freeborn of East Providence, opened the new East Side Country club boxing show at Boyden Heights and caused the police to stop the main bout between Dyson and Tickle on the ground of prize fighting. Referee Abbott announced that the matter would be immediately taken into court.

THE PUGILISTS (Continued) B. A. C. vs ANNEX A. C. The Brooklyn Athletic club football team and the strong Annex A. C. team of New Haven will meet at C. the Driving park Sunday and a good battle is expected. The Annex team is made up of the strongest players in the Elm city and will be composed of the same players that will line up against the strong All-New Haven team, which played the All-Waterbury and the B. A. C. team a tie game, on Thanksgiving day in New Haven for a side bet of $200. The B. A. C. team was out for practice last night and will meet again to-night. Paper Mill Starts Up.
