HALL DESTROYED, CHURCH DAMAGED BY SELBYVILLE FIRE

The building destroyed was the old Methodist Church, used as a town hall and for school purposes.

It was located on what is known as the "back street."

The beautiful Salem M. E. Church, one of the finest in lower Delaware, was damaged when it caught fire from flying embers...

Fire companies from four different towns were summoned to join the Selbyville fire fighters in combating the flames.

The damage, it is estimated, is about $10,000 to $12,000.

The fire started in the old church building, and is supposed to have been caused by an overheated heater. The damage to the Methodist Church was confined to the roof and the interior furnishings.

The damage, it is estimated, is about $10,000 to $12,000.

Sipel's Headlights Said to Have Allowed Mrs. Gibson to See Hall-Mills Crime

RECTOR'S LETTERS NOW IN EVIDENCE

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 21 (United Press)—Several witnesses, who were expected to testify for the State in the investigating of the Hall-Mills murder now being carried out by the Somerset county grand jury, have disappeared...

The official who made this statement refused to tell who the witnesses were but said that detectives and State troopers were now making a search for them.

It is feared, he declared, that they have left the jurisdiction of the State.

If the report is true it is believed the State's case will be seriously damaged.

The State is rolling up a tremendous accumulation of evidence against the "woman in gray" and the man whom it seeks to indict for the murder.

Resumption of testimony before the grand jury today was spurred by discovery of a new witness, George Sipel, a hog farmer, said to be able to identify the driver of the automobile whose headlights threw into relief the actual murder scene...

BAR PASHA AS PENDING OFFICER

LAUSANNE, Nov. 21.—(United Press)—Ismet Pasha the Turkish representative at the Near Eastern peace conference, was told Friday today by the Allies that he could not preside at any of the meetings.

The Allies decided the Presidency must alternate among the British, French and Italians despite the Turkish claim that they are a victorious nation.

The day's session was devoted to organization.

A feature of day's activities here was a prolonged private conference between the Premiers of France and Italy.

While other delegates went to the conference at the chateau, Poincare and Mussolini remained behind at their hotel to discuss economic matters and the forthcoming Brussels reparations conference.

Nominally the conference was to establish peace between the Greeks and the victorious Turks. But the Turks now claim that their victory (Continued on Page Ten)

HARDING DARES FOES TO DEFEAT SHIP SUBSIDY BILL

The Message

In his message to the extraordinary session of Congress today President Harding says:

Members of the Congress: Late last February I reported to you relative to the American merchant marine and recommended legislation which the executive branch of the government deemed essential to promote our merchant marine and with it our national welfare.

Other problems were pressing and other questions pending and for one reason or another which need not be recited, the suggested legislation has not progressed beyond a favorable recommendation by the House committee.

The committee has given the question a full and painstaking study and I hope that a favorable report speedily will be given the force of law.

It will be helpful in clearing the atmosphere if we start with the frank recognition of divided opinion and determined opposition. It is not new experience. Like proposals have divided the Congress on various previous occasions.

Perhaps a more reasonable hostility never was manifested before and I am very sure the needed decisive action—decisive, favorable action—never was so urgent before.

We are not now dealing with a policy founded on a theory. We have a problem which is one of actuality. We are facing insistent conditions, out of which will come either additional and staggering government losses and national impotence on the seas or else the untimely loss of the flag on a great American merchant marine commensurate with our commercial importance to serve as a carrier of our cargoes in peace and meet the necessities of our defense in war.

There is no thought here and now to magnify the relation of a merchant marine to our national defense.

It is enough to recall that we entered the world war almost wholly dependent on our allies for (Continued on Page Seventeen)

SWEAR MRS. FELTON AS GEORGIA SENATOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. (United Press)—Mrs. Rebecca Felton, the first woman Senator, was sworn in as a member of the Upper House of Congress today.

After a lengthy argument made by Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, in which precedents in the Senate were gone over, Mrs. Felton rose from her seat in the rear of the chamber and accompanied by Senator Harris of Georgia, walked up to the Vice-President's desk.

She raised her right hand and the acting President of the Senate administered the oath for the first time to a woman.

There was no objection raised to her admission and Senator W. F. George of Georgia, who could have claimed the seat by presenting his credentials, was absent.

It was noted that after Senator Felton holds her seat for a day she will resign and Senator George will be sworn in.

In citing precedents on the admission of an appointee to the Senate Senator Walsh declared that despite a ruling of former Vice President Marshall to the contrary the indications were clear that she should be allowed to take her seat.

The second is obstructive—confering government operation and attending government losses and encouraging private enterprise by government competition under which losses are met by the public treasury and witness the continued losses and deterring until the colossal failure ends in sheer exhaustion.

The third is destructive—invoking the sacrifice of our ships abroad or the scrapping of them at home, the surrender of our aspirations, and the working in general, our humiliation before the competing world in particular.

"A choice among the three is inevitable. It is unbelievable that the American people or the Congress which expresses their power will consent to surrender. It is equally unbelievable that our people and the Congress which translates their wishes into action will longer sustain a program of obstruction and attending losses to the Treasury."

Mr. Harding said the bill was not a subsidy "but Government aid" in the same sense as the Government provides in building inland waterways and improving roads to aid in (Continued on Page Fifteen)
