BISHOP LEE'S RECENT VISIT TO THE LAND OF THE AZTECS, THE CONDITION OF PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL MISSIONS IN MEXICO.

The arrival of Bishop Lee on Saturday from his mission to Mexico, after a two months absence, and the announcement that he would be present at St. Andrews, last evening, drew together a large congregation. The Bishop did not seem the least fatigued from his long, tedious and somewhat dangerous journey.

After preliminary services, by Rev. Mr. Arnold, the Bishop, without selecting a text, said he intended to speak of his visit to Mexico, not with reference to the romance or the charms of nature which surrounds it, but in a religious aspect, and to give some idea of the religious movement which he believed to be the beginning of a glorious era for Mexico. Before proceeding, however, he wished to acknowledge the leading hand of God, which he believed to be in answer to the prayers of his friends. He here related an exciting incident of his voyage. Before entering the harbor of Vera Cruz, a storm arose in the gulf, which lashed the waters into a fury and hid from view a long line of white reefs usually seen, and which were not at the time discovered until the vessel was almost upon them. In three minutes more the vessel would have struck and destruction been almost inevitable. But by a sudden lurch by the pilot the vessel cleared and was saved. In this he acknowledged the interposition of Divine Providence in answer to prayer.

In referring to the country, he said there was a religious instinct in man, which if carefully guarded is the source of much happiness, but if not carefully controlled, it was the source of much misery and woe.

The old Spaniards found the Aztecs in possession of the country, and in both races this religious instinct was strong. It was the speaker's fortune to see in the court of the National Museum the stone altar, upon which thousands of human victims had been sacrificed to appease the gods. In the centre of the altar was the cavity in which the hearts of the victims were placed, and there was a trough which conveyed the blood from the altar.

We ascend, continued the Bishop, to an upper room, where were to be seen the bodies taken from the Inquisition, bodies taken from cavities in which they had been walled up with solid masonry, while living and left to perish. From one of these cavities in the wall were taken the bodies of a woman and her child which were preserved in the museum. In this instinct the Aztec differed but little from the Spaniard. In both cases we see the powerful instinct of religion, but so perverted as to show a lack of the light of heaven.

There has been a revolt against Romish institutions, but it is only political in its significance. The land had been so impoverished, for the support of convents, churches, monasteries, nunneries, and other religious institutions, that the government was compelled, in self defence, to adopt its policy of confiscation. In 1857, the new constitution which confiscated for the use of the Government, the convents and monasteries was adopted.

The revolution was entirely a political one, made in the interest of the government without any desire to injure the established Roman Catholic church. The intervention of Napoleon in the affairs of Mexico, resulted in an opening for the introduction of the light of the Bible truths, and this was followed by a sincere inquiry after truth, which inquiry increased more and more until 1865, when a priest by the name of Aquilla gathered around him a congregation and secured a room in which to hold religious worship. He labored with uncommon zeal in the course of a year, when he ceased to labor, and went to enjoy his reward.

The new church was now left without a head until they heard of Dr. Riley, who was officiating with great success amongst the Spaniards of New York. When the call was made for Dr. Riley he considered it impossible to go, but after a more mature deliberation and earnest prayer he concluded to enter upon a mission for which he was so well qualified. The entrance of Dr. Riley into Mexico was signalized by much excitement. He entered with much earnestness upon his labors, and had tracts published and spread broadcast amongst the people.

Dr. Riley was protected by the newly adopted Constitution from violence, but such was the state of the public mind that freedom of thought and speech had to be indulged in very carefully. The Romish people gathered up a few of the tracts and took them to a Dominican priest by the name of Argos, who after due preparation, challenged Dr. Riley to a public discussion, which challenge was accepted. When the time, however, arrived, Argos instead of opposing the new movement, had been convinced and came out as its champion, entered at once into the new work. He challenged the Romish Arch Bishops and ecclesiastics to a public discussion, which they at first accepted, but ultimately failed to respond to. Dr. Riley, about this time, came home to New York, and Argos being left in charge, labored with such zeal that his health in a manner not to be accounted for, gave way, and he soon died.

This is a branch of the church which was not transplanted, but built up of natives of the country. It is acknowledged as an independent National church, and not as part of the Episcopal church of the United States, the only object of his visit being to establish such an intimate relationship as to make it a sister church.

The Catholic priests are continually annoying the little church and imputing everything which happens to the introduction of the missionaries. The Sisters of Charity being given the choice either to take the oath of Allegiance or leave the country, this was construed into an expulsion from the country. An earthquake which happened in some of the provinces, the priests said was a judgment for admitting the missionaries, and also said that the word "missionary" meant "annexation."

It has been named "The Church of Jesus," the word protestant being left out as in that country it was synonymous with politics. The first publication in defence of the new movement was by Aquilla, and was entitled "Man's right to read the Holy Scriptures." The church is based upon the righteousness of Jesus Christ, liturgical in its character, in which a belief of the Holy Trinity is fully set forth, and conforms to Episcopal customs. The new movement now embraces 39 congregations, three of which are in the city of Mexico. There are about 3000 persons who can be relied upon, and others who attend would swell the number to 6000 souls.

During his visit, he ordained seven persons to take charge of the work, one of whom is a pensioned officer and another having means of his own. Some of these persons had been disowned by their parents on account of their religion. He confirmed a class of 29 and then an additional class of 20 and before he left he had confirmed 130 for the City alone. Dr. Riley saying that if fuller notice had been given, 1000 persons would have come in from the surrounding country. Some had even come over 100 miles, and appeared from their dress and manner to belong to a different nation. One of these was a man over 70 years of age and another was an Indian of pure blood.

The Bishop's remarks, throughout were listened to with the greatest attention.

CIVIL RIGHTS AND NO MEALS.—The Chester River Steamboat Company has abolished public meals. On two occasions since the passage of the Civil Rights bill colored persons have presented themselves at the table, and in order to obviate this occurrence in the future the company has resolved to dispense with public meals entirely.

A $4 00 Book for $1 50.

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in plain English, or Medicine Simplified: By R. V. Pierce M. D. Counselor-in-Chief of the Board of Physicians and Surgeons, at the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y. The above Work—a book of about nine hundred large pages, profusely illustrated with Wood Engravings and Colored plates, and well and strongly bound—will be sent, post paid, to any address, for one Dollar and Fifty Cents—making it the cheapest book ever offered to the American People. Other books treating of domestic medicine, of like size and style of binding, and not nearly as well illustrated, with no colored plates, and some of them containing no prescriptions and making known no means of self-cure for the diseases which they discuss, sell for from three dollars and a half to five dollars. Were Dr Pierce's Work not published by the author, printed and bound with his own machinery, and were it sold through agents, as other like works are, the price of it would have to be not less than four dollars. For when the publisher pays the author a fair price for his production, then adds a profit to his investment large enough to satisfy himself and compensate him, not only for his labor, but also for the risk of pecuniary loss which he assumes in taking the chances of the enterprise proving a success, and when the State, County and canvassing agent has each received his profit, they have added to the expense of a book, that originally cost about $1.25, so much that the people have to pay not less than $4.00 for it. The People's Medical Adviser, on the contrary, is placed within the pecuniary reach of all classes by the author, who adopts the plan of the Grangers, dispensing with middle men and giving the benefit of their profits to the people, offering his book at a price little above actual cost of publication. That those desiring the book may run no risk of loosing their money in sending it through the mails, the author advertises that money addressed to him at Buffalo, N. Y., and inclosed in registered letters, may be at his risk of loss. The author's large correspondence with the people upon medical matters, which we are credibly informed, frequently exceeds three hundred letters a day, and requires several trained and skillful medical assistants and short-hand reporters to enable him to entertain and answer them, as well as his large daily dealings with disease at the World's Dispensary, appear to have peculiarly fitted him for writing the Work, by rendering him very familiar with the every day medical needs of the people. He endeavors in this work to answer all the numerous questions relating to health and disease that have been addressed to him by the people from all parts of the land, and hence it contains important information for the young and old, male and female, single and married, nowhere else to be found. All the most prevalent diseases of both sexes are also plainly and fully considered and means of self-cure made known. Unlike other works on Domestic Medicine, it includes the subjects of Biology, Cerebral Physiology, Hygiene, Temperaments, Marriage, Reproduction, etc., all of which are treated in an original and interesting manner. It is a compendium of Anatomical, Physiological and Medical Science and embodies the latest discoveries in each department.
