

Comes to Paris

After a long, hard winter, Paris spring displays the picturesque charm which the city long has celebrated. Fishermen browse in the sun along banks of the now-placid Seine. A catch makes a welcome addition to the still-lacking larders of most families. The first of the season, too, is the fisher who brings her catch to the market to sell to the fishmongers.

Old as well as young enjoy the mild weather. These men select a glade in the Bois de Boulogne for their game. Acme Roto Service.

Pity the worm—he'll wiggle and squirm
Whenever you use him for bait.
But don't copy him..feel free..look trim..
