

Will H. Hays Is Now Leader Of His Party

This Fact Demonstrated at Meeting of Republican Committee at Chicago

He Never Stops Working Governor Lowden's Friends Start Boom for President; Other Timber is Discussed

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Among the outstanding features of the meeting of the Republican National Committee at the Congress Hotel nothing is plainer than the fact that Will H. Hays for the present, now that Colonel Roosevelt is gone, is the leader of the party.

This is partly due to the mechanics of the situation and partly to the success which has attended the young statesman from Indiana since last February 12 at St. Louis, when he became chairman.

Will H. Hays is modest but not retiring. Study of his record in no place in the curriculum of the Indiana school of politics, as conducted by Hays, Governor Goodrich, Senators Watson and New and the rank and file.

The Republican organization there has been remarkably successful in retiring the Democrats, but they do not themselves retire. Chairman Hays has driven the national committee machine literally almost day and night for the last eleven months.

It is probably a fact that no chairman ever went to the pains that is daily exercised by Chairman Hays to consult with his colleagues in the committee. Chairman Hays would much prefer that Hynicka's resolution should not have been offered, but it was offered, and adopted without a dissenting vote.

Another significant feature of the meeting was the "moving in" of the women members of the national convention Executive Committee. It is one thing to act in an advisory capacity, but it is another thing to have a vote.

As stated in The Tribune yesterday, Miss Mary Garrett Hays of New York held the proxy of Gander Olson, of North Dakota, and Miss Josephine Preston, of Washington, that of S. A. Perkins, of Tacoma. They voted and talked.

Governor Barnquist of Minnesota, the only one on Friday who made a set speech, made a hit when he effectively used quotations from Lincoln and Roosevelt bearing on labor and compensation. The stalwart young governor from the wheat state had a hard battle with the Townley men and the Democrats last fall, but he beat them by appealing to the reason and sense of fairness of the voters.

He said yesterday that he probably would not have won had it not been for the assistance of Colonel Roosevelt.

The Republicans of the Northwest said that if his national convention next year selects an Eastern member as the head of the ticket, Governor Barnquist will be urged for second place. He is a fine voice and presence and is strong in his own state.

Presidential Timber The only Presidential boom at all noticeable is that of Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois. The sentiment in the national committee is a distinct danger to boom just at this time. The session of the committee passed without any serious discussion of candidates.

From the jurisdiction, or at least from the national committee, Governor Lowden's friends are busy getting in under way for next year. State Chairman Frank L. Smith is in charge of the Lowden columns, and Mr. Smith is a fighter. The Lowden men held an informal conference yesterday, and afterward Chairman Smith said:

"Illinois Republicans, representation of the active Republicans of all sections of the state, were in the Congress Hotel to-day, interested in the proceedings of the Republican National Committee. The sentiment was clearly indicated individually and was unanimously for the nomination for the Presidency by the national convention of 1920, of Governor Frank L. Lowden, of Illinois."

"The suggestion of the informal conference was that at a suitable time the Republican State Committee should be asked by me to take such steps as may be necessary to give to the Republicans of Illinois the opportunity to demonstrate to Governor Lowden that he is the state's choice for the Presidential nomination."

Others Who Are Discussed In a quiet manner all the other "possibilities" were discussed. Harold L. Ickes, former Progressive, thinks Governor Henry L. Allen, of Kansas, would be a great candidate. Then there are the Ohio men, who promptly came forward with William Howard Taft, now Senator Warren G. Harding. Some of the others discussed were General Pershing, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts; former Governor Charles S. Whitman, of New York; Charles Evans Hughes, of New York; Senator Philander C. Knox, of Pennsylvania; and Senator Hiram Johnson, of California.

scale, which other manufacturers probably cannot keep pace with, even if they would, that if he enters politics, with the backing of the labor people and the Non-Partisan League, he will mix everything up in the industrial states."

Chairman Hays has left for his home in Sullivan, Ind., where his mother is seriously ill. Colonel William Boyce Thompson, New York, chairman of the committee, authorized by the national committee to consider the creation of a permanent national memorial to Colonel Roosevelt, said that as soon as he returned to New York he would begin work on plans for the organization of the necessary committees to further the project.

Trench Doughnuts Fried in Hut Here By Salvation Army

After Dedication in Union Square Adjutant McAllister Teaches Novices to Mix Toothsome Batter

If you followed your nose in Union Square yesterday, around behind the camouflaged battalions to the Broadway side, you came upon a little white cottage nestled under the elm trees, and from that little white cottage came not only the smell, but the sound of sizzling fat and the spatter of doughnuts in a ten-quart pail, and if you then followed this smell and the sound you found Adjutant Violet McAllister, with flour on her nose and a great white apron over her khaki uniform, frying Salvation Army doughnuts right here in little old New York, just as if she were back in the trenches.

Around her clustered a great crowd of doughnut boys, grabbing for the hot rings, and over in a corner the Salvationists were singing "O, God, our help in ages past."

It was the first doughnut day of the new Salvation Army hut in Union Square, and there were formal exercises at noon to dedicate the new room for soldiers and sailors. Lieutenant Joseph F. Wright, representing Admiral Usher, of the Brooklyn navy yard, and Colonel William McIntyre, of the Salvation Army, made the speeches, and the band of the battalions Recruit furnished the music and got a good share of the first batch of doughnuts. Adjutant McAllister and Adjutant Helen Purveyance fried 1,000 doughnuts, and between batches gave lessons to the novices who are to take their places after they get the knack of making the real trench kind; but the veterans had to keep out of sight after the first hour, because the doughnut boys wouldn't go away, preferring to lean over the counter and start one of those "Were you in Bordeaux?" conversations and the doughnuts almost burned up.

The hut will be open every day for reading, writing and gossip, with doughnuts and coffee for 10 cents to all men in uniform.

Sisson Sounds Warning Against Bolsheviki

New York Financier Says Radicals Would Wreck Both Capital and Labor

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—The business and industrial world would be turned upside down, investors' interests would be wiped out and labor would find its present rights and privileges gone if Bolshevism should prevail in this country, Francis H. Sisson, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, said today in warning business men to guard against chaos and mob rule. Mr. Sisson spoke at a meeting held under the auspices of the Massachusetts Chamber of Commerce.

"We business men of America are standing to-day in the front line trenches of private ownership of property, of freedom and democracy in business and government. Let us not be deceived into giving ground by the specious propaganda of visionaries or demagogues. Private ownership will have to fight for its very life."

"Labor itself should be on its guard to forestall such possibilities, for labor has as much at stake and is just as jealous of our individual and collective liberties as any other element in our social organization."

Mr. Sisson also spoke in opposition to government ownership of railroads and other public utilities.

Whitman Drops Fight on Election Of Governor Smith

Tells Glynn It Is Not Probable Full Account Would Give Him Majority; Chairman Scores Tally Officials

EN-Governor Whitman's contest of the election of Governor Smith has been dropped. George A. Glynn, chairman of the Republican State Committee, announced the decision yesterday, making public letters which passed between him and Mr. Whitman concerning the examination of the ballots.

"Unless the State Committee disagrees with me," Mr. Whitman wrote, "I am disinclined to approve a continuance of the inspection." Continuing, he wrote:

Whitman Drops Fight on Election Of Governor Smith

Tells Glynn It Is Not Probable Full Account Would Give Him Majority; Chairman Scores Tally Officials

"Had my opponent's majority been as it appeared at the time of your first communication, namely about 7,000, I should not hesitate to consent to a continuance of the inspection throughout the city and states, as I have no doubt that that majority would have been overcome. It is, of course, possible, though to my mind extremely unlikely, that an examination of every ballot box throughout the state might result in the overcoming of the apparent majority of 14,000."

Glynn Accuses Ballot Handlers Mr. Glynn had said in his letter to Mr. Whitman:

"The result shows a net gain in favor of the Republican candidate for Governor six votes to an election district. I might call attention to the fact that the districts examined were not picked, but were taken in the regular order, beginning with the 1st District."

"If this average were maintained in the 2,629 election districts of greater New York, the Republican candidate would gain 15,774 votes, a number sufficient to offset the returned majority for the Democratic candidate for Governor."

"The examination discloses the fact that many inspectors are incompetent, that many willfully violate the law, and that the law lacks safeguards to secure an honest vote."

"The examination verified the complaint made to the committee that ballots in some districts had been handled seven and eight times, with a loss to the Republican candidate for Governor as compared with the original figures. It was found in these districts that hundreds of ballots had been invalidated by double cross marks and deacement in the Governor's group, and that there was no resemblance between the cross marks when two were made, indicating that the elector had not marked twice."

Wants Further Safeguards "It was found that a large percentage of the void ballots which should be placed in the official envelopes provided for that purpose were returned to the ballot boxes and a great many actually counted for the Democratic candidate for Governor."

"The State Committee believes that the disclosures of the examination should result in the enactment of laws for the safeguarding of the ballot and an amendment of the law relating to contests in elections."

"An examination of all the ballots of greater New York would cost $20,000 and might readily extend over two years. Under the law this cost must be borne by the candidate."

Berry for Adjutant General Governor to Put His Name Before Senate Monday, It is Said

From authentic sources it was learned yesterday that the name of Lieutenant Colonel Charles W. Berry, of Brooklyn, as the nominee for Adjutant General of the State, will be submitted to the Senate next Monday evening by Governor Smith. Colonel Berry was a Brooklyn physician and was commissioned a major in the army when war was declared.

Since the resignation of Charles H. Sherrill several months ago the office of Adjutant General of the State has been vacant. Colonel Berry's appointment will elevate him to the rank of brigadier general and will make him commander of the New York Guard. The position pays an annual salary of $7,500.
