MISS WALKER AGAIN GREETED IN CAPITAL

Former Stock Favorite Repeats Success in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine."

That "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" has lost none of its charm was shown at the first performance of its return engagement at the Columbia.

The dramatization succeeds quite as well as the novel, and together with Miss Walker's large following of admirers, it is a distinct success, even in its third season.

Romance, thrills, sentiment and adventure and most of it at the point of the shotgun, pervades the story. The play having been written for Miss Walker, most of the honors naturally fall to the star, but others in the cast who share her laurels are W. Hart, as the father, Judt Tolliver, Willard Robertson, a former Columbia player, as Dave Tolliver, and George Lancaster, the engineer-hero.

George Woodruff gives a good characterization of Uncle Billy Bear, while Cyrus Wood, as Cal Heaton, and Alice Martin, as Loreta Tolliver, contribute clever character sketches.

GAYETY.

Presenting two musical burlesques that seem with humor, P. S. Clark's "Topsy" poses with a week's engagement yesterday at the Gayety. The opening burlesque is entitled "The Mayor's Election," in which Mike McCarry, played by M. J. Kelly, and Isaac Gray, depicted by Irvin Gentry, are candidates.

CRANDALL'S.

Music by Prof. Green's Orchestra is a feature of the program offered by the Crandall Theater, Ninth and E streets, last week. The program yesterday included a four-part spectacular photoplay, "The Nihilista," showing Russian intrigue and treason.

"Romance" May Be Romantic, But One Likes It, Too

By JULIA MURDOCK. For the heroine of his play "Romance," Edward Sheldon chose a character that was in vogue forty years ago, when a tinged romance surrounded every foreign artist who visited these shores.

Miss Keane in the part of the capricious prima donna, brilliant, she runs the gamut of temperament and sentiment, happy smiles and wanton wiles. She acts the part with a Latin dialect that is as charming as it is difficult to understand at times.

New Year Eve Dream Becomes a Reality.

The curtain rises at 8 o'clock, showing the study of Bishop Armstrong. It is a bare, almost ecclesiastical room, with little furniture save the bishop's arm chair, his desk, and a modern victrola on a stand.

TANGO A FLAT FOOT MENACE
