

NOVEL IDEA FOR THANKSGIVING PARTY

A Little Affair Which Delighted Company of Girls.

A girl, famous among her friends for original entertainments, gave a recipe party last Thanksgiving. Most of the girls lived at home, and were interested in household affairs.

When the girls had all arrived and had had a chat about the open fire in the living room, they were invited into the kitchen. Chairs were ranged around the long table—made longer for the occasion—and a little pad and pencil lay at each place.

Each girl in turn read a recipe aloud, being careful not to announce what it was. From the ingredients mentioned and the directions for making, the others were to guess what her concoction would be.

No restrictions were imposed as to the kind of recipe to be presented, so the girls were at liberty to offer their favorites: cakes, muffins, preserves, puddings, chafing-dish delicacies, or candies.

A Novel Piece. One guest who had the reputation of being a good writer, and a rapid one, was asked to write the recipe in a little book. This was a home-made affair consisting of sheets of water color paper, the covers and occasional pages being daintily and appropriately decorated.

When the last of the recipes had been read, these were compared and corrected. The girl who guessed correctly the greatest number was given the little cook book as a prize.

Raisin Crusts. Stove one-half pound of raisins, put them into a stewpan with two ounces of granulated sugar and one gill of grape juice or any unsweetened fruit juice may be used.

Cranberry Jelly. Wash and pick over one quart of cranberries; put into an agate saucepan with one cup of cold water.

Dainty Clothes Give Girl Poise and Self-confidence

by JULIA CHANDLER MANZ. This is the story of the Lonesome Girl. I call her that because it is the way I thought of her the first day I met her at a little party which she had been asked for some reason which I have never known.

As soon as the chance came to me I went to the side of this Lonesome Girl who was wearing the little party frock through eyes which told so much of the longing in her heart that I knew very well that she was the one quiet guest at the feast.

"I found out among other things that there was scarcely a girl in the room whom she would not like to number among her friends, if she only knew how, and I also learned that the Lonesome Girl was in a maze concerning the case with which so many of her acquaintances attracted folk to them without any apparent effort."

One day the aunt decided to give her niece a party and to fit her out in a brand new frock, with all of its pretty accessories for the occasion. It was a dainty little gown and brought out all the good things of the girl's personality and made her feel so light-hearted and happy that she quite forgot that she had not liked the idea of a party; quite forgot that she was stranger to the city, even forgot that she was shy, and quite amazed her aunt by the ease with which she met and entertained her guests.

The girl who wants friends, who desires to be liked, must give folk something on which to rest their eyes. It is not the cost of her clothes that counts so much as the charm. It isn't wealth or lack of it that makes the difference, but the graciousness of the girl's manner, her ability as a conversationalist, that indelible something which we call magnetism.

I read of a young woman who had neither beauty, a great amount of education, nor money, but she was exceedingly popular; the possessor of a host of friends; her presence much desired everywhere. And the reason of her popularity would rather with the pen of the world lay in her genuine interest in making the most of herself. She was neither a deep thinker nor a great reader, but she kept sufficiently abreast of the times.

Cranberry Frappe. Pick over and wash one quart of cranberries; put over fire in agate saucepan with one quart of cold water. Boil ten minutes; add two cupfuls sugar; boil three minutes; then mash through a wire strainer and set aside to cool. Put into ice cream freezer and churn ten or fifteen minutes. The cream freezer has been packed with ice and salt, two cups of ice and one part salt. After it has been churned, remove the dasher and cover with ice and salt until ready to serve.

Bread Filling. One tablespoonful dripping, one tablespoonful finely chopped onion, raw turkey liver, chopped fine, one loaf stale bread, one teaspoonful salt, one-fourth teaspoonful pepper, one tablespoonful chopped parsley, thyme or sweet marjoram.

MRS. WILSON IS A SPLENDID COCK

Wife of President-elect Is a Model Housekeeper.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the next President of the United States, is a Southern woman—a native of Georgia. She is a model housekeeper, an expert in the kitchen, and particularly proud of her ability to cook the famous Southern dishes.

"Gov. Wilson since his marriage has lived on Southern chicken," says Mrs. Wilson. "You see, we have always had cooks from the South or those who were Southern born, and they know how to cook chicken better than anybody in the world, the Governor thinks. He would rather have chicken Southern style than a foreign-cooked banquet."

On the subject of suffrage she says: "While my daughter Jessie is an out-and-out suffragist, I cannot say that I am, though no one in our family is an anti-suffragist. As my husband expresses it, I feel that I am in the 'middle' of the argument. If I were to decide the question from my own personal standpoint, and from that of women similarly placed, I should say that we do not need suffrage, either for our protection or for influence."

per. Boil one minute, strain through a fine wire strainer and serve.

Roast Breast of Veal, Filling. Have a pocket cut in the veal; wipe the meat off with a damp cloth, fill the pocket, sew up; place in roasting pan, dust with salt, pepper, flour, and one tablespoonful of drippings.

Spanish Onions a la Harrison. Six Spanish onions, one tablespoonful salt, one tablespoonful butter, one tablespoonful flour, one cup cold milk, one-half teaspoonful salt, one-fourth teaspoonful white pepper.

More Than Hundred Lives Sacrificed to Roller Skates

By FRANCIS SHAPFER. As one sees children gliding along on roller skates, coasting down hill and gaining greater speed as they go, there is always the impression that it is a dangerous bit of sport. Then one remembers that little folk are bound to take their chances and that at the worst the only consequences of a tumble or two may be a few bumps and bruises. But the figures recently given out by the National Highway Protective Society startle one into believing that there is ample ground for the impression, and that the sport is just as dangerous as it looks.

In the ten months of this year in Greater New York 126 young lives were sacrificed to the craze for roller skating. Sometimes the trouble came at the hands of automobiles or heavy trucks, and sometimes the boys and girls going faster and faster on their down-hill coast, fell—and that ended it all. For they gain great speed as they get under way, and when an accident comes, the blow is pretty heavy, and the little folk pay the price of their venturesome pleasure.

Probably these figures are not approached in any other city in the world. Europe cannot equal them anywhere, and surely our smaller cities and towns do not pay so dearly for the childish pastime. But it is worth while for fathers and mothers everywhere to take care when their little folk indulge their fancy for the sport; and if they do not bar out the level spots they can stand guard over the grass.

Few, very few of our cities are fair to the children. They warn them that they must not do this and they cannot do that; they must not play ball for fear of broken windows and they must not play with roller skates for fear of scolded and threatened when they run in front of cars and heavy trucks on the busy streets, because they worry the drivers and run the risk of something with their shoving, they run staid pedestrians down with their bicycles, they give them a shock with their skating, and the street is no place for their games.

"Then he said unto them, Go your way, eat the fat, drink the sweet, and send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared."

- Roast Turkey, 25 cents. Baked Apple, 5 cents. Cream of Chicken Soup, 10 cents. Corn Meal Mush with Cream, 10 cents. Sausages, Baked Potatoes, Doughnuts, Coffee, 15 cents. Dinner, 50 cents.

The busy or perplexed housewife will find much to help her plan a delightful and delicious Thanksgiving dinner if she glance over the Thanksgiving menus of the past few years and the November editions of Martha's Management. Very clear and explicit directions for selecting, preparing, stuffing, and roasting the Thanksgiving bird will be found in Martha's Management.

Chop one pint of clams, add two cups of cold water and heat gradually to the boiling point. Let simmer twenty minutes, then strain through sieve. Boil one quart of milk, add salt and onion, a sprig of parsley and a stalk of celery. Melt one-fourth cup of butter; in it cook one-fourth cup of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, and half a teaspoonful of pepper, add milk, cream, clam puree and stir until boiling. Strain in the milk and add half a cup of cream. Serve at once.

Sardine Salad. Take some cold cooked fish, halibut will do. Free it from skin and bones and flake it. Place a layer of this in a dish and sprinkle it over with a mixture of oil, ketchup and a few brained capers; arrange on this a layer of sliced German sausage and arrange on the top of the pile sardines freed from skin and bone and heat in halibut. Cut some lettuce hearts into quarters, place round the dish, brush with olive oil and vinegar. Beat the sauce well before adding it to the salad.

Handy For Needlework. In this design we have a combination sewing apron and work bag. This is very handy for the needleworker. The apron is made with pocket for scissors, thimble, etc., and the bag is used for carrying the thread or silk floss if fancy work is being done.
