CONCERNS OF THE DISTRICT

Truesdell Reviewing Evidence in Gessford's and Daley's Case.

CAR-FENDER TRIAL TO-MORROW

Col. Tracey, Superintendent of Charities, Submits His Annual Report—Comment Upon the Board of Children's Guardians—Hospital for Minor Infectious Diseases.

Commissioner Truesdell was not in his office yesterday. It is understood that he was engaged at his residence in the perusal of the extensive report from the police trial board in the case of Officers Daley and Gessford. The recommendations of the trial board were for dismissal. What will be the action of the Commissioners upon the return of the case by Col. Truesdell is not yet a matter of public knowledge, it is mere conjecture. The supposition is that the findings will be reversed.

"An act to enlarge the duties of the senior of weights and measures," and for other purposes, have been prepared for submission to Congress at its next session. It provides that it shall be unlawful for any person to use counter or platform scales or yardsticks without having them properly tested and without the certificate of the senior as to their accuracy attached. Examinations are to be made at stated intervals, for which fees are provided. The new law also affects hawkers.

Rev. F. Hill, pastor of the Metropolitan A. M. E. Zion Church, and C. W. Childs, M. D., of No. 414 Four-and-a-half street southwest, have filed a strong plea with the Commissioners for the return of the case by the police force and in the Fourth precinct.

Mary Daley, who claimed $5,000 damages of Gessford in a case sustained November 17, 1893, by falling through a faulty sewer-trap at the corner of First and G streets southwest, brought suit before Justice O'Neal yesterday. The case is set for trial in her favor on the 21st instant for $100 and costs, and the Commissioners yesterday directed that the judgment be liquidated.

Orders issued yesterday. That the following work be done under the provisions of the act of August 7, 1894, governing assessment and permit work. Grading and paving. In square 149, pave fifteen-foot alley with asphalt block; square 77, pave all unpaved alleys with vitrified block; square 88, same square 4, pave all alleys with asphalt block; square 32, pave all alleys in south half with vitrified block; square 27, pave all alleys with vitrified block; square 42, pave all alleys with asphalt block.

That a water main be laid in Eighteenth street, between Corporate and B streets. That a public gas lamp be re-erected on K street, between Thirtieth and Thirty-first streets. That a fire hydrant be erected on N street, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets. That a water main be laid in Eighteenth street, between Oregon and T streets.

That catch-basins be constructed at the northeast and northwest corners of B and H streets. That a water main be laid in Huntington place, between Fourteenth street and University place, also one in Second street, between L and M streets southeast, including a fire hydrant in each instance.

The Washington and Georgetown Railway Company officials notified the Commissioners, under date of the 22d instant, that they have equipped car No. 3, of their Fourteenth street line, with the Ross automatic brake and fender, and the Commissioners designated it as car No. 2, to be run as the hour for a trial trip, at which they expect to be present.

Alexander McKie has been appointed an additional private on the police force for a term of three years, to serve between New Jersey avenue and Second street and B and E streets southeast.

So much of the sum of $9,000 appropriated for the improvement of Alleman street as may be necessary to grade and gravel the dedicated portion will be expended at once, the improvement being very much needed. That portion of the street that adjoins the property of citizens who are unwilling to give the right of way, will be left unimproved.

Col. John Tracey, superintendent of charities, submitted his annual report to the District Commissioners yesterday. The superintendent says there are seventy established charitable and reformative institutions in the District supported by philanthropic men and women. That they exist without official support is one manifestation of the never-failing charity of the people.

"Candid observation refutes the erroneous opinion, urged especially in connection with Congressional discussion of appropriations, that the benevolent establishments of Washington constitute an imposition on the United States government. The institutions supported exclusively by public funds number eleven. The appropriations for these for the coming fiscal year is estimated at $385,741. The appropriations for those conducted by municipal corporations in part with private funds will amount to $22,700. The value of the property occupied by District institutions, exclusive of the Government Asylum for the Insane and the Columbia Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, is closely estimated to be $300,000, while the value of that derived from private sources is $1,120,000."

Speaking of the results achieved, the superintendent says: "Since the establishment of the superintendentcy, for which this is the fourth annual report, the number of District of Congressional appropriations through the District has been decreased. The aim of both superintendents has been to improve existing agencies, and, in as far as possible, to avoid the creation of new ones. Applications for subsidies have been received from several organizations not now in receipt of official aid. Among these are the Young Women's Christian Home and the Home for Friendless Girls, on Erie street, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets northwest."

INTERVIEWED BY A PRESS REPORTER.

He Gives the Interviewer a Description

Of What is Essential to the Successful Treatment of Catarrh, Asthma, and Bronchitis—Reporter Convinced There is None Like Dr. Riegel's Treatment.

A representative of the press called on Dr. Riegel yesterday to learn something, if he could, of the doctor's method and the instruments used in his treatment of catarrh, asthma, and bronchitis, in which diseases the doctor is a leading specialist, and it is well known that he has cured many prominent people in this city.

When asked concerning his method of treatment he said: "There are four essential requisites in the treatment of catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, and kindred diseases that must be strictly followed in order to effect a cure. They are: "First—Application must be made without causing pain or irritation. "Second—Every portion of the diseased surfaces within the nasal, posterior-nasal cavities, and throat, must be reached. "Third—Sufficient force must be exerted to remove all diseased secretions from the diseased surfaces. "Fourth—The instruments for making application must be so constructed that the solution can be applied in a warm condition."

"Cold application to these passages and cavities is always irritating. The solution should be made so warm that the patient will be conscious of it. The warm spray cleanses more quickly and more thoroughly. It is much more agreeable, and far more likely to reduce inflammation. Every physician who has had only a few years' experience in the treatment of catarrh, asthma, and bronchitis, should see the necessity of avoiding everything that induces irritation. "If either the means by which the remedy is applied, or the remedy itself, causes irritation, it should be immediately discontinued. "No doubt a remedy would frequently prove beneficial were it not for the irritation caused by the rough manner of applying it. The instrument that every part of the diseased membrane must be reached, and those parts not reached will not be benefited, and yet almost every instrument or apparatus used by the general practitioner, and even those used by the great majority of physicians who limit their opinion to the diseases of the nose and throat, fall far short of this object."

"Spray producers that can throw a warm stream on the whole of the diseased surfaces, and the only ones that I think possess the four requisites above mentioned, are the spray producers known as the 'Humidizer,' invented by Dr. Thomas Hummel of St. Louis, and the 'De Villedes,' invented by Dr. Allen De Villedes of Toledo, Ohio. The difference between the two being the manner of applying the latter is used. "With these instruments, the only ones I now use, for I have discarded all other means as entirely worthless, I can reach every portion of the diseased membrane, cleanse and treat it thoroughly, and do so in the mildest possible manner, causing no pain or distress to the patient and accomplishing the best possible result without cutting or the use of caustic preparations."

Not only do these instruments which I use cleanse and treat at the same moment every portion of the diseased membrane, but they do so to the surfaces and cavities that cannot be reached during life, and these same cavities are the very ones that most need cleansing and treating, and unless these remote parts are reached to cure is possible. These instruments combine with themselves a hose, a nozzle, and a nozzle in making application that is not equalled by any known means. Here are two cuts showing the different directions of the spray when used for cleansing and treating catarrh and throat diseases.

Fig. 1. Antero-posterior section of the head, showing the combined directions of the spray-producer in the local treatment of the nasal and posterior-nasal cavities.

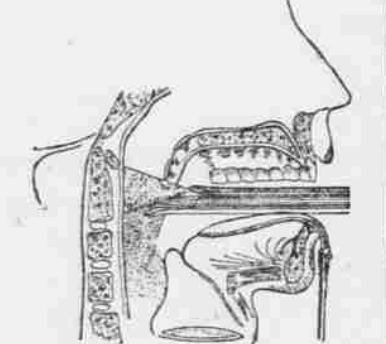

Fig. 2. Shows the combined directions of the spray-producer when used in the treatment of the diseases of the throat, tonsillitis, sore throat, and all other diseases of the throat and vocal cords.

"I have made it a rule for the last ten years to give free trial treatments to every one who applies in person at my office, and it seldom happens that a person that comes to me for a cure of these diseases does not come back to be cured. I give a guarantee to every person I take for treatment. Another thing I guarantee to all my patients, taken that if I cannot relieve them of most of their present and disagreeable symptoms in from one to two weeks, I will refund all money paid."

The reporter left the office of Dr. Riegel fully convinced that Dr. Riegel could and does cure catarrh, and publishes the account of his interview for the benefit of those who are suffering from catarrh and kindred diseases, who have tried the treatment of different specialists without obtaining any relief.

Dr. Riegel gives free trial treatments and consultations every day from 10 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 8 p.m., Sundays, 10 to 12 a.m., at his office, 1224 Fourteenth street northwest. If you are suffering from any of these diseases above mentioned call at Dr. Riegel's office and receive a consultation and trial treatment absolutely free, these judges for yourself whether or not the foregoing statements are true.

dentors, which is a distinctive feature of the board's method. "Released from confusing complications with local institutional funds, and with means adequate for the economical transaction of the business of caring for children, committed to it by the criminal courts in wardship during their minority, the children's guardian board will be equipped to do most good in the distinct and interesting field, and to supply justly the confidence of its friends. As to the appropriations of this board, a special advisory responsibility devolves upon the superintendent of charities by the provision of the law of 1892 instituting the board. "In reference to the necessity for a hospital for the proper care of sufferers from minor infectious diseases, Col. Tracey says it has long been a reproach that Washington has no such institution. For the major contagions there has been some provision made, though it is not always adequate. "To remedy the shameful state of affairs existing the attention of the Commissioners and of the superintendent has been steadily directed since the enactment by Congress of authority to purchase a site and equip the hospital. The report goes elaborately into a review of the efforts to secure a location, and cites in detail the urgent necessity for such an institution. "The report touches upon the relief work of Washington during the last winter, gives a
