Peace Parley Brings Together Rival Factions of Two Major Leagues in Chicago To-day

Johnson and His "Loyal Five" Ready to Accept New Tribunal

Immediate Fate of Baseball To Be Settled at Joint Meeting; Landis Is Said To Be Unanimous Choice for Chairman of the New Commission

By W. J. Macbeth

A conference of the sixteen club owners of the National and American leagues will be held in Chicago to-day. The result of the deliberations will settle the immediate fate of organized baseball. The club owners, one and all, believe that war will be averted. Fandom, therefore, may await the issue tranquilly.

There will be no surrender on the part of the eleven club owners who had to go to the extent of threatening a combine for a new twelve-club league to bring Ban Johnson and his "loyal" five clubs to their senses. This fact was emphasized again yesterday by the four local magnates before they entrained on the Twentieth Century Limited. The party included Colonel Jacob Ruppert, president of the Yankees; Charles A. Stoneham, president, and John J. McGraw, vice-president of the Giants, and Harry H. Frazee, president of the Boston Red Sox.

Before this quartet would consent to double back to the Windy City the strongest assurances had to be given by their associates and spokesmen remaining in Chicago that the proposed conference was something more than the stories from the Middle West have advertised it. Stories from Chicago intimated the conference but a preliminary skirmish, with nothing guaranteed by either side, which is far from the case if those responsible for calling the three club owners West again have stated the facts.

Minors Fail "Loyal" Five

To put it most generously, there has been a complete backdown and actual surrender to the big eleven by Mr. Johnson and his "loyal" five. This backdown came when the Johnsonian influence failed to realign the forces of minor league baseball behind the "loyal" five. A coup was planned to have Secretary John H. Farrell ditched as secretary of the National Association. When this coup failed and the minor leagues announced a policy of strict neutrality in the fight among the major league club owners, the hope of the "loyal" five went a-glimmering.

Johnson and his associates never were serious in their threats to put teams in New York, Chicago and Boston, all of which would have had two clubs already firmly established in the proposed twelve-club league. Regardless of financial backing necessary to swing such a gigantic proposition, it would have been a physical impossibility to build in time for next season.

But had the Johnson party been able to swing the minor leagues it would have been possible to reconstruct some sort of a circuit by drafting three of the best minor league cities available while the inevitable legal fight was made in the courts to establish title to players of the three deserting American League clubs.

According to the inside story that has leaked out of Chicago, but which would not be confirmed by any one of the Giant, Yankee or Red Sox club owners, the solid front of the "loyal" five crumpled the moment the minors declared for neutrality and watchful waiting. The scheme to put a representative of the twelve-club league in Detroit was too much for Frank Navin's nerves. He declared openly he did not propose to lose his money in war and would lock up his ball park first.

Griffith and the Washington club also took to the tall timbers, it is said, while Phil Ball of the Cleveland Browns, the belligerent St. Louisan, stood pat on his feet. It was then the story goes, the "loyal" five made overtures which resulted in the big parley to-day.

Agree to Accept Landis

It was stated plainly over the telephone by the delegates, before Messrs. Stoneham, Ruppert and Frazee left for Chicago, that the Johnson side had closed themselves not only to ratify the election of Judge K. M. Landis as head of the board of control, but also to accept the verdict of a majority vote in future on all interleague issues. If this is so, then in the interests of peace Ban Johnson and his old guard have already surrendered to every principle for which the big eleven made the fight in the first place, and for which the eleven were ready to carry on to the extremities of war.

None but the officials of the sixteen interested club owners will sit in at to-day's joint meeting. Lawyers and stenographers are barred. Even the press representatives, John A. Heydler and Ban Johnson, will be kept out. The big eleven does not stand pledged to accept any decision of the five minor leaguers. A fellow commissioner of Judge Landis, the second major league representative must be determined upon. But it is also known the eleven will indorse Judge Mellonald, who conducted the investigation into baseball bribery, and it is understood this time the Johnsonian faction will propose Judge Mellonald would be elected unanimously.

A committee of six from the minor leagues will be in waiting in Chicago if the conference turns out so peacefully as now seems certain, then the minor leaguers will be prepared to name their representative on the new governing board and go into conference with committees from the two major leagues, looking toward the drafting of an entirely new peace agreement.

May Modify Lasker Plan

The big eleven, which has fought only to have the government of baseball put in the hands of a commission in which the public will have the utmost confidence, and one which has no financial interest in the game, will not insist on an adoption of the Lasker plan as already ratified by the major league majority. Indeed, if the five who have supported Mr. Johnson and the minor leagues should consent to the project the new board of control would be a one-man affair, with Judge Landis as sole arbitrator. This suggestion will be made, though the point will not be pressed.

On the eve of the peace conference in Chicago the possibility of further trouble seems absolutely safeguarded. Whether it be Judge Landis alone or Judge Landis as chairman of a board of three, baseball law and government is sure of being placed in competent hands. Boss rule, it would seem, may now be written into the pages of ancient history.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 11.—After a conciliatory session to-day the warring clubs of the American and National leagues left here to-night for Chicago, where to-morrow they will meet in conference to decide for war or peace in the major leagues.

Predictions were made on every hand that the eleven club owners of the newly organized new National League, and the five clubs "loyal" to President Ban Johnson, of the American League, will agree to end hostilities. While no official announcement has been made, every member of the two major lenques has gone on record as being in favor of a reorganization in baseball, of the appointment of a new board of control and the selection of Federal Judge Landis, of Chicago, as the chairman with a salary of $50,000 a year.

Minors Appoint Six Members to Confer With Big Leagues

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 11.—The National Association of Minor Leagues to-day appointed a committee of six to meet with the American and National leagues to draw up a new governing body of organized baseball. M. H. Sexton, of Rock Island, Ill., president of the National Association, will be chairman of the committee.

The other members will be Thomas J. Hickey, president of the American Association, representing the class AA leagues; John D. Martin, president of the Southern Association, representing class A leagues; George H. Maines, president of the Michigan-Ontario League, representing class B leagues; William Walsh, president of the South Atlantic League, representing class C leagues, and J. W. Morris, president of the West Texas League, representing class D leagues.

This committee will meet with the majors, providing the latter succeed in settling their threatened war in Chicago to-morrow.

Midget Indian Enters Junior Run for Title

Patsoni, of Haskell Institute, and Cutbill in Cross-Country Race To-morrow

By Jack Masters

When it was announced a few days ago that Walter Higgins, the "Columbia Flyer," would not compete in the junior national 'cross-country championships to-morrow afternoon, a number of local aspirants to the title heaved sighs of relief and, simultaneously, the stock of A. Hulsenbosch, W. Ritola, Frank Zuna and Melville Schaeffer soared several points.

Yesterday the dial of victory slipped back a few points and now rests on neutral territory, with the big race about as even a thing as could be imagined.

The answer is that the entries of two of the best runners in the country have been added to the list of seventy men, who will race for the junior title of the United States, and either one of them is capable of winning, if in condition for the severe test. The late entrants are Amesoli Patsoni, the midget Indian, from the Haskell Institute of Kansas, and Harold Cutbill, of the Boston A. A.

Patsoni performed nicely in the Olympic try-outs at Boston and, although he failed in the 10,000-meter race at Antwerp, the little red man, despite his five-foot two inches, and his 110 pounds, or because of them, has long since demonstrated that he can run with the best of them. Cutbill has done very little track work lately, but he is a sterling runner and it is hardly likely that he will make the trip from Boston for "practice."

Hulsenbosch appears to be the most dangerous of the local contenders. The Paulist A. C. athlete finished sixth in the 3,000-meter steeplechase at Antwerp, and if the six-mile Van Cortlandt course does not prove too long a grind he should be up front at the finish.

Leading Cyclists To Ride in Armory Despite Warning

Twenty of the leading professional bicycle riders announced last night that they positively would take part in the six-day race announced for the 22d Regiment Armory during the week of November 21. They made a special trip in automobiles to send a statement to that effect and the statement is in the nature of an ultimatum to the National Cycling Association, which has forbidden the race. It is signed by Goullet, Magin, Spencer, Madden and many others well known in the cycling world.

The statement reads:

"The undersigned, who have always abided by and lived up to the rules of the National Cycling Association, protest against the unfair treatment handed upon us by the promoters of the six-day racing track in Newark, who have failed to constitute the N. C. A. officials as referees as they are required by the rules to do, and who have also failed to live up to their written agreement to allow the contestants to confer with their managers during the progress of the race.

"We are threatened with suspension if we ride in the race and refuse to ride in it. That is the reason why we refuse to give the Newark promoters preference.

"The Newark promoters fear open competition in the six-day racing game and whenever there is the slightest sign of opposition they have been making a stir on the riders.

We feel that we are acting out of self-respect and moral duties in coming to an understanding to race for sport and not for money. Clean competition only can bring forward the sport of cycling. We feel that we have as much right to choose our grounds for racing as golf, tennis or baseball players have, and we object to be forced to race on boards.

"The rules of the National Cycling Association do not forbid us from competing on any track throughout the country. We have complied with the written rules and regulations of the N. C. A. and have no intention of doing so, just because we refuse to race on the Newark track for the benefit of the promoters there."

Efforts were made last night to get in touch with Goullet, but without success. When these threats failed they have tried, by offering cash prizes, to induce some of the riders to race on the track, but without avail. This is the additional reason that the six-day race of cycling will be run off in the 22d Regiment Armory, as originally announced. The Londonderry Lad, Percy Lawrence, Jimmy Moran and Jimmy Rice, who have been training for the six-day grind, are going to be in the race.

Izzy Reports Baseball War

Gives Graphic Description of the Conflict's Horrors

By W. O. McGeehan

"It is a lucky thing that it is Armistice Day," said Izzy Kaplan. "If it wasn't for that the cashualities in this baseballing war would be terrible. I seen the inchunctions and the soupeenas, and they were something awful. It is a good thing that it was stopped before it commenced to start.

"You got to give it a lot of credit to Garry Heymann for what he done so that there would be peace. Garry tasted the Scottish whiskey, which they was moving it out to Chicago for the battle, and he saw what kind of a war it would be. The minuite he tasted that Scottish whiskey he turned white, even in the nose, and he said, 'It is terrible. We could not have it a war with this whiskey. We should see the Leak of Nations or the maggots would be wiped out, and what would become of the profits if there is any?'

"Up to that time it looked as though the war would bust and nobody would stop it. Colonel Jacob Ruppertstein marched out to Chicago with his regiment of lawyers and put barbed wire around the Hotel Blockstein. He said that he wouldn't never surrender till they blew up the cellar. Charley Stonehead and Chon McGraw and Chudge McQueer was in another hotel, and they said they wouldn't surrender neither. Harry Frazee, which he would never surrender, anyhow, said that Benny Johnson couldn't bluff him even he would send Louie Mann against him with a army of ectors.

Huston Sore, He's Missing the War

"All of this time Tillingstein Huston, of the Yankish team of baseballers, is lying sick in Roosenblatt's Hospital and he is sore because there is a war and he ain't in it. Tillingstein was gassed in the early part of the war, when he was in a conference with Benny Johnson. He was wery delerish when I seen him and he says to me, 'Tell Jakie not to shoot the inchunctions till he would see the whites of his eye, and if he should be speaking with Benny Johnson he should not forget his gassing mask, because the enemy is showing no quarter, and they would even be so uncivilized that they would put water in the Scottish whiskey.'

"I am getting a whole lot scared then because I am thinking that this baseball war would be worser than the other war, when I was in the signaling corpse. So I went up to Harlem, where I am living, to tell all my friends that they should get out before they commence to throw the bums into New York City. All over the place is lawyers marching out to chein the two armies.

"I seen Senator Kaplan, which he is my personal lawyer, and he says, 'Izzy, it is a terrible war. Look at these inchunctions, and they tell me that the enemy maybe would be using a lot of have his corpuses. You might be caught in the draft.' I told him I wouldn't care, but that I wouldn't go in the signaling corpses no more, but I would go in the artillery, so I would have a wagon to ride around in on account I am so wide around the middle now that I wouldn't walk to no war, even they would let me in free.

So Terrible They Can't Believe It

"They are telling me that conditions in Chicago where the war is starting is so terrible that nobody would belief it. Benny Johnson is making a lot more untimatoes, which means that he would never surrender and the gassing that is going on is so terrible that nobody could smell the stockyards, and the people couldn't find their way home. Harry M. Stevens, which he is supplying the commissary department, told me confidential that he is down to his last ten million, and if the war wouldn't end he would be a ruined man.

"Everywhere is people running around and asking, 'Where would the first inchunction be shooted?' Others is saying with pale faces, 'Have they opened up the Scotch at long range yet?' Up at Jakie Rupperstein's brewery the hands is all busy making munitions, and there is a rumor that he would use Knickerbocker near beer to stop Ben Johnson, if necessary. Some is saying that Jakie shouldn't did it. Others is saying that it would serve Benny Johnson right. The brewery wagons is starting to roll out on the way to the front, and Colonel Jakie is giving the order that they should 'Charge.' You could see it wouldn't be no friendly war.

"Chust when the brewery wagons was marching around the corner comes it a telegraph from Garry Heymann. It reads, 'Ban Johnson is surrendered. The Scottish whiskey is so rotten there would be no baseball war.'

"Well, anyhow, that is the best way to make it a war. You should have it the armistich before the war starts to commence, instead of after it is finished, and then there wouldn't be no cashualities."

Eaton Teams With Kaiser

Alfred Goullet's hopes of teaming with Ray Eaton in the twenty-ninth international championship six-day race in the 22d Regiment Armory, 168th Street and Broadway, Thanksgiving week vanished yesterday when the sensational young rider announced that he had formed a combination with Harry Kaiser, of the Bronx. Eaton was the sensation of the bicycle racing world in 1919, when he defeated Frank Kramer for the championship.

Pimlico Race Winners Pay Large Prices

Decisive Springs Surprise by Leading Field in Monkton Steeplechase Handicap

From a Special Correspondent

BALTIMORE, Nov. 11.—Armistice Day, which is a legal holiday in Maryland, attracted an unusually large crowd to Pimlico, where the genial public got the "razz" from the iron horses. Those few fortunate enough to pick winners came off well, as it was a bad day for the talent generally. The winners paid unusually fine prices.

The biggest surprise came in the feature race, the Monkton Steeplechase Handicap, at three miles, worth $5,000. H. W. Maxwell's five-year-old chestnut gelding Decisive came to life in this cross-country event and upset a lot of better rated timber-toppers in decisive fashion. Decisive's performance was in direct contrast to his previous starts. Those who backed him multiplied their investments by just thirty-four.

Mrs. G. W. Loft's Sweepment, as usual, went out into a long lead, but quit badly after two turns of the field. Then Skibbereen showed the way. Decisive came with a great rush at the end and won going away. Skibbereen finished second, four lengths in front of Earlocker.

Sara Hildreth, who has been winning a great many purses since he engaged Earl Sande to ride his thoroughbreds, added the Linstead Handicap to his local collection. This was the second-ary feature, a dash of six furlongs for all nges, with a $2,000 purse. Sande waited off the pace with Lord Brighton till well in the stretch. Then he came away with a rush, when Panoply and Hildur began to tire. Enfilade finished second.

As yet there has been no break between the Maryland Racing Association and the Jockey Club. By order of the governing turf body of this state, the Pimlico officials to-day were forced to give Carroll Schilling a temporary license, but no effort was made to have the jockey ride.

The results:

First race (three-year-olds and upward, non-winners at the meeting, one mile and a sixteenth)—King Aerippa, 115 (Butwell), $4.60, $2.60, won; Courile, 105 (Aaron), $2.60 second; Paddy Lou, 117 (Sande), $3.60 third. Time, 1.47 3-5. Foley II, Madonna, Bar Cry, Torquato II also ran.

Benny Leonard, the world's lightweight champion, was among others granted a right to ply their trade here.

Leonard and Welling To Fight Here Nov. 26

Benny Leonard and Joe Welling signed articles yesterday afternoon for a fifteen-round bout to a decision to be held in Madison Square Garden on the evening of November 26. The fighters will post a forfeit of $10,000 to-day and have agreed to weigh in at 135 pounds at 2 o'clock.

The announcement of this bout, which marks the first time Champion Leonard has agreed to defend the lightweight title since he knocked the crown from the brow of Freddy Welsh, was made last night by Tex Rickard. The amount the men will receive was not made public.

Welling opened the Garden in September, when he whipped Johnny Dundee in fifteen rounds. Leonard's last fight was with a third-rate welter, who took the count in the ninth round of a bout held at Camden a few weeks ago.

Pioneer Club Opens Nov. 19

The Pioneer Sporting Club will hold its opening show in its new clubhouse, the old National A. C., in East Twenty-fourth Street, a week from to-night. Charlie Doessgereck is the matchmaker. In the main bout of fifteen rounds Billy De Foe will meet Gene Delmont, the Memphis featherweight.
